

Jeannie Simmonds

I am a 25-year resident of Logan City and a 45 year resident of Cache Valley. I currently serve as the Chair of the Council and will be completing my 6th year on the Council. My 37-year career at Utah State University included work in Special Collections and Archives at the Library, as a business manager and as a major and planned gift fund raiser, including work planning and executing the first capital campaign. Before and since retirement, I have been actively involved in Logan, serving 2 years on the Historic Preservation Board, 6 years on the Planning Commission and now on the Council, currently serving as Chair.

My passion for Logan runs deep. I live in the heart of downtown and am well aware of the challenges and opportunities facing our city. Logan is a vibrant, growing community of increasing diversity. We must manage that growth, create neighborhood value through consistent zoning and enforcement; maintain and enhance critical services; seek out and encourage new business; enhance our recreation opportunities; balance growth with sustainability; and maintain and grow our infrastructure and maintain a balanced budget. I promise to continue working on behalf of all citizens of Logan, to ask questions and provoke thoughtful discussions, to pass meaningful legislation that keeps the special character of this city while allowing measured change and growth.
