The Dawn of a New Year

The books for the year 1931 are closed. We are now stepping out into a new year with agricultural prospects in Cache valley brighter than they have been for several years back. These prospects brighten the countenances of the masses of the agriculturists who subsist upon the fruits of the soil of this fair commonwealth. God's blessings are not always withheld and it begins to look as if the blessings will be heaped upon Cache valley during 1932.

Indications are that the heavy snow storms this winter will supply ample irrigation water the coming season. Water for the crops insure a bounteous yield from the fertile soils. There isn't much in prospect to make a demand for a higher price for our agricultural commodities but with a quantity harvest the average returns per acre should well be up to normal.

Last season there was no pea or bean crop in this county to speak of. This year the packers are planning on a large acreage. This will insure the operation of the vinery and canning plants at Smithfield and Hyrum. Inasmuch as the farmers are beginning to learn there is no excellence without labor, many will turn their attention to sugar beet raising. Beet culture furnishes plenty of hard work but during 1931 it was about the only crop that put a silver lining in the purses of those farmers who planted beets. This experience should be profitable in planning crops for the coming year.

Dairying will be stimulated considerable with ample water for the production of a bounteous hay crop. All in all, the new year holds much in prospect for the thrifty citizens of Cache valley.

When wild geese honk high at night and when Sooty moves uneasily on his park bench you may know that winter is near at hand. A dead leaf fell on Sooty's lap. That was Jack Frost's card. Jack always gives fair warning of his annual call.

The hibernatorial ambitions of Sooty were not of the highest. In them there were no considerations of Mediterranean cruises or of sportive Southern skies. Three months on the island seemed to Sooty the essence of things desirable.

There were many ways of reaching the island. Sooty left his bench and strolled up Broadway. He halted at a glittering car. If he could reach a table inside unsuspected, success would be his. A roasted mallard duck, thought Sooty—

And then Camembert and a demi-tasse. But as Sooty set foot inside the restaurant the head-waiter's eye fell upon his decedent shoes. Strong and ready hands turned him about and covered him in silence and haste to the sidewalk.

In The School of Adversity

Those who learn in the school of adversity are apt pupils. Many valuable lessons are impressed upon the mind and when properly applied help to build a firm, substantial prosperity.

Adversity is the true test of friendship—it is the acid test. It weeds out the flatterers and throws the spotlight on friendship.

In adversity a man may lose his friendship, his money and his business; but if he keeps his self-confidence he is up before he is down.

Business depression is not a good thing for any country. It is the test of fire and only the courageous survive. Business depressions help business to build upon a firmer foundation—they separate the chaff from the wheat and point the way to success.

A Penny Can Hide a Mountain

A penny, held close to the eye, can hide a lot of real savings only an arm's length away.

Haven't you sometimes said, after trouble with a "bargain" "I wish I had spent a little more for this in the first place."

It isn't the first cost of a "cheap" thing; it's the upkeep. Real economy compares values as well as prices.

Right Stranger—Tell me, have any big men been born in this city?

Native—Nope, only babies.

Never Before

A barber was shaving a new customer. "Haven't I shaved you before sir?" said he. "No," said the customer. "I got those scars in France."

Still He Died

After a temperance lecture in Scotland, one of the audience tarried and greeted the amemic speaker as follows:

"Did I understand ye to say ye never took a drink in a yer life?"

"Yes, sir, liquor has never passed my lips."

"Weel, sir, my old man now dead was a bit o' a drinker a' his life, an three days after he died he was a healthier looking man than you are now."

The Smallest

The street car conductor's change was running short. A young mother with an infant in her lap handed him a half dollar.

Conductor: "Is that the smallest you have?"

Young Mother: "I've only been married a year."

A PRAYER FOR THE NEW YEAR

Help us, dear God—that we may be From the burden of debt entirely free— That this the New Year, will bring to all: A winter, spring, summer and fall Of happiness, with work to be done, And a wholesome living for every one. Help us, Thy wisdom to understand— Let Thy blessings flow on this Thy land. (all rights reserved) FELIX O'DAY.

A Purpose Rather Than a Pleasure

"What is your pleasure, sir?" said the teller to the customer.

"Gold," replied the gentleman, "but I came here to get a check cashed."

But whatever the source of her courage might be, the steadfastness of her mind was a thing to be admired.

It was not, he believed, a bluff either. From some source or other she was finding happiness. She hadn't been as cheerful in months.

She confessed herself puzzled about the change in Edith. She knew the man around her shoulders and, of course, that he had. Anyhow, she was delighted with the change. It was a relief to see her up and up to the fact that she was happy, at the mercy of some one else—any one else, not even the best—any one else.

Compensation The Story of a Music Master By FANNIE HURST

Living in the machine-age should in some measure have prepared the director for what was coming; hundreds of the more astute have even been in the firing line, before it actually happened.

Edith was an out-of-town customer. Her hands one day and took him to lunch. When he got back to the office, about three o'clock, he saw the city salesman detaching a letter to Edith.

The glimpse he got of the man in the yellow glasses before he opened it, offered him the feeling was leaning over her closer than necessary, and his good-looking eyes were a fatuous smile.

He looked around with a perceptible start as his employer opened the letter. It was a check for a completely changed man. "That's all. Yours very truly,"

Edith was a girl. "I'm really very sorry, too, in her face had a lot of people to see, he told Edward, between now and six o'clock.

Almost against his will and aware that his voice didn't sound as if it were covered with a net, he said, "It is a business letter, Edith."

Feed Low-Testing Milk to the Calves

Good Method of Eliminating Surplus.

Due to low milk prices indications are that many profitable cows will be kept this winter. This means that a surplus is bound to be created and some dairymen will be forced to market for all of the milk.

Where milk is paid for on a basis of its butterfat quality, this winter will be a good time to feed the low-testing cows such a practice which dairymen should join a co-testing association in order to pick out the low-testing animals. If you are not fortunate enough to belong to an association, save out a sample of most cows' milk both night and morning, and set it aside until the cream rises in order to determine which cows are making the thin milk. If every other cow could pick out one or two of his low testers and feed that milk to his calves during this winter, much of the surplus would be eliminated. Without doubt one or two calves raised each month this way will bring considerably more money as dairy cows than is the prevailing price for dairy animals at the present time.

Another thing that will not only benefit the herd but will reduce the surplus will be to give the individual cows about two weeks more rest period this winter than previously. Without doubt such a practice will be a good investment, because well-fed cows always produce better milk, and economically than those that are in poor condition.—Herald, New York.

Showing the Relation of Drought and Crops

Reports from many sections of the West that are suffering from the 1930 drought showed that the yields of many crops were above normal. This is a wide range, especially in the case of cotton in the South and wheat in the Middle West. This simply means that the crop himself of this year is available in plant food whether supplied by the soil or in the form of fertilizer. It is a result of subnormal rainfall during the fall and winter the available nitrogen in the soil is not washed away, but is available in the soil including even the nitrates in many cases, was not leached out; and that the plant food that was carried to the soil naturally became available, through biological and geological processes, which are now being carried on.

The real test of the attempt to grow crops without fertilizer will be in the case of the large crops in 1931, no more than the usual supply of available plant food will be left in the soil.—Exchange.

Get a Reputation

Whether a poultry man ships two, ten, twenty, or forty cases a week, he can create a reputation for his eggs for uniformity of size, quality, and for careful packing. Poultry men who get the top reputation are those who cannot get a high price. A reputation is not made merely by sending one or two shipments carefully graded and packed. Every shipment must be the same, and after a time buyers will be able to see the steady market.—Michigan Farmer.

Direct Rays Bring Eggs

Direct violet rays are the best for winter egg production. They also affect egg fertility and promote healthy growth of baby chicks. Sunshine provides the needed elements in fine weather. On windy days, however, when hens must be kept in the house, direct rays are the best. Direct rays are the best. Direct rays are the best. Direct rays are the best.

Flabby Hogs

Packers complain of an unusually high percentage of soft pork from the United States. This pork is not desirable. Scientists down in Illinois have discovered the cause of the soft pork. They say that the reason is the use of urea to market. These men blame the condition to the feeding of soybeans in the winter. They say that the reason is the use of urea to market. Room for Pulletts

More room for pullets is a pressing need on most farms at this time of year. This can well be provided by setting cockerels well required for breeding purposes. To hasten the time when cockerels may be placed on the market at the desired weight it may be advisable to crate-fatten them. Healthy cockerels may, reasonably, be expected to gain 25 per cent of their original weight in ten to twelve days. This also applies to their own weight.

One Way to Kill Lice

A commercial tobacco product, commonly called Black Leaf 40, has been successfully used for killing lice. This material, which is a thick liquid, is applied to the roost with an oil can or a brush. It is then allowed to dry on the roost, and kills the lice. This of course, will not kill lice on the hens but will kill them on the roost.

Army Must Answer Some Odd Queries

Information Bureau Anxious to Be of Assistance.

New York.—Who? Where? When? How? How? How? This is the barrage of questions which is the daily lot of one regular army soldier holding a unique position in the military service. To his desk and over the telephone come all sorts of queries, this multitude of questions having to do with service matters for the most part.

The soldier who, to answer these divers and multitudinous questions, must be a wide range, company flag at his finger tip, is the desk clerk of the United States Army Information Service, 30 Whitehall Street, New York city.

This man comes in contact with several hundred people every week, who are in quest of some form of information, and not always of a military nature. Still, the iron-bound rule of that office is "All queries must be answered."

The greater part of the queries are made by phone, but many feel that they can obtain better service by calling personally.

In addition to the hundreds of different questions pertaining to the veterans bureau, the National Guard, the organized reserves, the citizens military training camps and West Point, the information clerk is called upon to settle many disputes between friends who disagree over some question regarding the military service.

The following are typical of the questions asked:

What is the weight of the army rifle, and how many shots will it fire?

What regiment of engineers is surveying the proposed Nicaraguan canal?

Who is the assistant secretary of war?

What is General Ely's first name?

When does the next army transport sail and how many troops will it carry?

What is the present rate of exchange between the United States and Mexico?

"CRIMS" OF INDIA ADEPTS IN CRIME

Skillful in Robbery Almost Beyond Belief.

To step in where a government had admitted failure, to get all his energies and long years of perils won in a fight against organized crime was the task that Commander F. Booth Tucker, of the Baluchistan Army, together with his assistant, met him when he undertook to reform certain notorious criminal tribes in India.

The "crims" as the Indian criminals are called, consist of entire tribes of natives, some of whom are descended from the ancient rulers of India. They live almost entirely by robbery and rapine. There are about 3,000,000 Crims in India, banded together in a secret society whose sole business is to commit crime. Both men and women take part in the robberies, while their children are employed as scouts and guides.

The Crims use neither sword nor gun, and invariably carried out the raids miles away from their own village. "Then follows a general 'share out' of the spoil, which frequently amounts to a huge sum. In one province 3,000,000 rupees were reported as stolen in one year. Of this amount only the odd 300,000 were recovered.

Occasionally a tribe will keep a regular gang of perhaps 30 young men for the robbery for the whole tribe. The remainder live as agriculturists. If one of the gang is taken by the police, a successor is immediately named by the tribal chieftain. If he hesitates to go, every woman in the tribe rocks him. It is a case of "No nocks—no wife."

One of the difficulties was to induce the Crims to believe that a policeman was not necessarily a foe. The ordinary Crim is adept at breaking into native houses, whose walls are usually of mud or wattle. He does not force open the door; he cuts a hole in the wall.

SHOVELS REWRITE STORY OF FLOOD

Excavations Now Show It Was Local Affair.

Philadelphia.—Picks and shovels of modern archeological expeditions are rewriting the Biblical story of the flood on the banks of the ancient Euphrates in Mesopotamia. A series of moving pictures, taken by the University of Pennsylvania expedition, under the leadership of Dr. C. Leonard Woolsey, were brought to the museum by the steamer and exhibited to the public.

These show that the Biblical record of the rising waters, which is the Bible relates, and not all the people of the earth were drowned. According to the Biblical account, the only family to survive the rising waters of the river was that of Noah, but the archeologist said that there were no Jews thereabouts at that time.

United States Warns Japan It Is Violating the Nine-Power Treaty—President Prods Congress on Relief Measures.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

JAPAN has been formally notified that in the opinion of the American government she is violating the nine-power treaty by her actions in Manchuria. The United States does not recognize the legal Japan's occupation of the country. China and Japan are both warned that Washington will not recognize any agreement entered into by them which violates the open-door pact or the Kellogg anti-war treaty.

These statements were forwarded in identical notes to Tokyo and Nanking by Secretary of State Stimson, who immediately after being called in the diplomatic representatives of the signatories to the nine-power pact and told them what he had done. It was expected that Great Britain and some of the other powers would follow the American example. The United States declined to say what could or would be done if Japan persists in violation of the treaty. The nine-power pact calls for no other action than "full and frank communication between the contracting states."

John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, said that organization would gladly undertake the distribution and later he believed that the American Red Cross and other organizations. The farm board is to be credited with the market for the adoption of a home rule by the coming national convention. He advocates the admission of an amendment to the Eighteenth amendment which would give control of the liquor traffic to each individual state.

Mr. Rankin also asked that the result of his questionnaire to contributors to the last national campaign be referred to the members of the national committee recommending the adoption of a home rule by the coming national convention. He advocates the admission of an amendment to the Eighteenth amendment which would give control of the liquor traffic to each individual state.

Caracasana

You may have never been to Caracasana in France, and like the old man in Nadia's famous song, you may lament, "I never shall see Caracasana," but you have heard of it and read of it, the famous wealthy city which still stands as it did in the Middle Ages, with its double line of fortifications and 50 towers. The city dates back to the fifth century when it was occupied by the Vikings, while its cathedral, St. Natalis is of the eighth century. The city is so old that Julius Caesar saw it 2,000 years ago.

Says Rogers

OSAKA, Japan.—Wet all I know is just what I read in the papers, and what I see as I grow. I think the last time I wrote you a long letter we were in the middle of a Pacific Ocean. Y-o-u know I am the come on and the world getting assed, and I know that I just lack a c nerve. If you will just keep up there and battle with it, and keep going you are O. K. But I am kinder yellow anyhow, and when I feel that squirmish I start biting for the Hay, and when once I get down in the old funk why I'm a dead Dog from then on, no matter if we are out for a week or a month. So knowing this in advance I'll get all set for about eleven days fun and amusement right in the old bank with one of these little shits. I mean that I'll get onto the side of it. Everybody said, Ah! keep going, eat all the time, drink Flax Elixton of course is a good Sallor, for he has done nothing but sail somewhere all his life. He was a kidding me and telling me to get down and a lot, and have another little glass of beer.

Stop Your Cold in 6 Hours with DAROL

Well it's a beautiful trip from Vancouver to Victoria, that is the Capitol of British Columbia. So I didn't have much excuse to leave over going through all those beautiful wooded islands and green hills. We got over there just about dark, and there was a lot of folks come down to the boat. The American consul there wanted to take me ashore and show me the Town. Course it was dark, but we drove by all the big Government buildings and we got a mighty good idea of the city. There's beautiful houses here and gardens and green hills about the most British city of any in Canada, there is an awful lot of Brits here. I mean that I'll get onto the side of it. Everybody said, Ah! keep going, eat all the time, drink Flax Elixton of course is a good Sallor, for he has done nothing but sail somewhere all his life. He was a kidding me and telling me to get down and a lot, and have another little glass of beer.

Road Work Never Done

Road construction and road work are never done. We have built thousands of miles of fine highways. But the inexorable march of progress makes more and still more roads necessary.

It might be said that a road dollar has never been entirely wasted. There have been "political" roads and there has been uselessly expensive construction in areas where there was no need for it.

Modern engineering practice and materials have made it possible to build weatherproof, surfaced, secondary roads for a fraction of the cost of high-type main highways.

SEWER PROJECT BACKED BY LOGAN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE SATS REPORT

(Continued From Page One) Their report, however, commends the Utah State Water Storage Commission to change the plan to cover the south end of the valley only.

I have asked graduate to represent in Congress, especially Senator Reed Smoot and Congressman Collier for their untiring efforts in the matter.

It became necessary to raise quite a sum of money to match the government appropriation for preliminary work covering the last survey.

During the last state legislature the chamber's road committee and the officers, in connection with the joint roads committee from Lewiston, Hyrum and Logan worked almost incessantly during the sessions of the state legislature to get the new road bill, and the state gas bill passed in the legislature.

The committee is composed of experts in their particular lines, and many helpful suggestions thru the press came from them.

The BEGGERS

A Novel by Henry Kitchell Webster Copyright by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

PRECEDING EVENTS He was passing a big public garage now, and he passed before the show window. They had all sorts of accessories in there. Why didn't he make his beginning here. Why didn't he go inside and find the boss? And say "Can I interest you..."

CHAPTER V—Continued Oh, he was watching a mountain of a model! He had been arguing with himself about it until he was getting excited. The agent became aware of him and he went to put one of the clothes into his pocket some day, walk into the nearest garage he came to and sell them a dozen.

That would settle the question whether there was anything the matter with him or not. He'd be sitting out of Edith's "I know that anybody who has any good could do some things." He'd certainly been talking about it sometimes when she said that, not about him.

Why, he'd do it, when he had time, to restore his sense of honor—leave his mind free for dealing with matters that were really important.

Naturally he'd find it unpleasant, a man of his years and position, to start out peddling, to try to get the attention of a man who was busy or pretending to be—about something else and didn't want to listen to him; to assume the name of a low road peddler.

"Say, friend, I've something here..." It made him smile to think of it. It called it forth, how some time. He was going to have to do it.

He did discharge the city salesman and none of the applicants who answered his want ad in the paper had been really satisfactory. He'd sent out-of-town salesman, Tom, who was temporarily laid off. Mariner was more than content to wait for the day when Edith had the office to them.

There came a particularly bad day, no orders at all, a letter in the mail; an obvious disingenuous letter from a customer who owed them quite a lot of money, offering a perfectly unbankable ninety-day note instead of the check Edward had counted upon—another bad debit; a letter that she should be very heart to answer; a tax notice; and a long chatty letter from a bond salesman who was offering a number of municipal tax-exempt securities that he said. Nothing to do, nothing to do, nothing to do, nothing to do; the sky, a pitiless cold blue; the winter sun, in great, bright, golden splendor, a cruel mockery of his despair. He shut his book and put down his pen.

Edith at that moment had gone into the office with a letter from Charles Franklin. He got up and put on his hat and overcoat. With hands that trembled a little, he took a sample check and slipped it, along with a pad of order blanks, into his pocket.

"He got to go out for a while," he told Edith, when she came back to the office. "I may not be back before lunch."

Well, he'd got out, anyway, he reflected, as he closed the door behind him. He was going to get a good rest. Edith hadn't remarked anything queer about his voice.

He walked away without direction, with no conscious objective. His hands were in his overcoat pockets and his feet were in a row of shoes of the things they were tripping—that is, auto shoes! He'd left the office with the idea of making a sale, and with some unexpected work that he wouldn't come back until he had made a sale.

taining the price. Edith learned something about any of these little dealers care how much gasoline his device would save? They sold gasoline. They'd sold anything there was a handsome profit in, unless it were so hopeless a fraud that it kept coming back to him.

He tried the new approach and found that half the time, perhaps, he would try to find out the list of dealers to whom he was to come, next day, half a dozen of his checks on commercial banks.

He was dog tired by now, but somehow he couldn't stop. Something didn't know what it was. He'd been listening to the man who had sold him the device.

At last, he visited a man who did not mean to hear a word of his story. He was a stout, middle-aged man, perhaps, with a thick neck and a bullying voice.

"Nothing doing at all," he said violently. "I've been listening to you fellows all day, and I'm through here."

"I feel, I suppose, much as you do," Edward told him. "It's as if I were talking to a deaf man. It's impossible to get into his mind as it is to listening to a string of plausible nonsense."

Edward's emotional response to this sort of thing had been an intense feeling of anger. He'd been talking with the man. There had been a time when Mariner had talked with him about the auto check device.

So, finding Mariner in the office waiting for him, when he had finished his words about the device after his selling adventure, he was prepared to do battle against him.

"All right," Edward said, sitting down and motioning Mariner to get on with it. "Let's have it out. What's on your mind?"

Mariner surprised him. "I've been thinking of your device," he said. "I don't think you've got the right policy. What you're doing is not selling, but a question of selling it, and that's what we're doing. Except for the fact that you're selling it, it's practically a local business."

Edward got a burn as he listened to Mariner's words. He'd been practically a local business. He'd been selling it in the West, and that part of the country had been his market. St. Louis and Kansas City and from there on, all the way to California.

It began to seem what was coming. It switched his mind off what Mariner was saying and directed him toward it. By the time the inventor would up, "That's how it looks to me," he had pretty well decided upon his line.

"That's not a bad idea," he said. "I'd like to see any way to accomplish it. I'd like to see any way to accomplish it. I'd like to see any way to accomplish it."

"If you could be essential," Mariner said, "I'd like to see any way to accomplish it. I'd like to see any way to accomplish it. I'd like to see any way to accomplish it."

"I'd like to see any way to accomplish it," Mariner said. "I'd like to see any way to accomplish it. I'd like to see any way to accomplish it."

"I'd like to see any way to accomplish it," Mariner said. "I'd like to see any way to accomplish it. I'd like to see any way to accomplish it."

"I'd like to see any way to accomplish it," Mariner said. "I'd like to see any way to accomplish it. I'd like to see any way to accomplish it."

Coast Tour Should Prove Beneficial to Romney's Hoopsters in Conference Games This Season.

Monday afternoon at the Aggie gymnasium found the farmer hoopsters practicing in dead earnest for the Montana State series which begins Friday.

Coach Romney arrived from Salt Lake Sunday night, and immediately mapped out his week's program. In discussing the California tour, the Aggie mentor asserted that it would be ridiculous to expect a greatly improved playing percentage. He was well pleased with the University of California series at Los Angeles. The Aggies were pointing to this series and were therefore well satisfied with the outcome. Coach Romney closed the coast athletic days as among the strongest in the entire country.

This week's drill will be spent on perfecting a scoring combination that will really score. The forward positions are of course the biggest weakness. Rudy Harris showed up exceptionally well on the coast tour and may be inserted as one of the forwards if he can put a little pep into his floor work. He is the best ball runner among the forward candidates. Virgil Cropley is a great fighter and is still an outstanding candidate as is Elwood Drysdale who is at the present time out of the game due to an infected foot. Guy Christensen is another man who is improving rapidly and because of his great height will see considerable action. Oscar Bellison improved on his floor work but his basket shooting suffered a setback. However, his floor play has been his weakest point, and now that he has improved upon it he will likely remain as a fixture.

Coach Romney closed George Young, rugged guard as the most consistent player on the tour. Captains also was brilliant in most of the games and gave an indication of great power. Everett Campbell scored well but his passing faults will have to be ironed out before the Bobcats are met.

Manager Olofson of Blue Light Gas and Oil Company Announces Office Changes

Members of Local Organization Transferred to Salt Lake Offices of Utah Oil Refining Company.

A. G. Olofson, manager of the Blue Light Gas and Oil company, announced today that in order to increase efficiency in the accounting and bookkeeping departments of the Utah Oil Refining company and their various subsidiary companies, it has been decided to centralize this work in Salt Lake City.

Mr. Olofson explained that the business of his company has increased to such an extent that specialized help is necessary in each department and this is particularly true in the accounting department. Naturally, the expense would be too great to specialize in each department in each subsidiary company, so the consolidation idea was adopted. It will in no way effect the territory covered in the past, which includes Boxelder county from Deweyville to the Nevada and Idaho line, Malad, Downey, McManis, Lava Hot Springs, Bancroft, Soda Springs, Montpelier, Grace and Preston in Idaho and Bockville, Kemmerer, and Bear Valley in Wyoming, as well as Cache county.

The division office for this territory will be in Logan as usual and Mr. Olofson will still act as division manager with A. Badger as sales manager. Mr. Badger came to Logan from Salt Lake City two years ago and joined the sales force of this company.

Verd's opera "Rigoletto" which was produced January and at the Capitol theatre by the music department of the Utah State Agricultural college with Professor Walter Weill and N. W. Christiansen, directing, carries with it an unusually interesting plot.

The story of Rigoletto is a tragedy one but the episodes of tragedy are interspersed with many humorous lines and situations reflecting the great work of Victor Hugo, whose work "LeBole amuse" was the inspiration for Verd's opera.

If the saying is true that "All the world loves a lover" then Rigoletto should be doubly interesting for the Duke of Mantua, ensnared by Marcus Griffin, is the John Gilbert of that day and falls passionately in love with every pretty girl that comes under his gaze.

The humor of the play is brought out by "Sparafucile" played by Paul Mussen, who is a professional assassin and has his murder stand-off in mind.

Rigoletto, interpreted by John M. Anderson, carries with him two curses: one of a deformed body and one placed upon his head because of his injustice toward his character, and that of his daughter Gilda, trapped by Miss Tyra Wilson, hangs the tragedy of the story.

PROSPERITY APPEAL MADE TO ELKDOM

Grand Exalted Ruler Coen Believes Better Times Immediately Ahead—Proclamation Issued.

John R. Coen, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, has issued a proclamation to all lodge members to participate in the Washington Centennial on February 22. It has been announced by A. A. Firmage, exalted ruler of the Logan lodge, in his message to members throughout the nation, Mr. Coen calls attention to the heavy toll of material prosperity and valuation taken over the country by the present adverse conditions.

He says in his message that the Elks, before us present an unparalleled opportunity for achievement. February brings the birth anniversary of George Washington—probably the greatest of the founders—and also of the martyr Lincoln. Surely the merged suggestion of the course and fertility displayed by Washington and the troops who so devotedly followed him through dark, dangerous and the hardships of Valley Forge, and the recalling of the patient, patriotic devotion of the soldiers, who met death as its reward—will inspire our membership to sacrificial service on behalf of our country.

The message to the Order to participate in the bringing back of prosperity, by the grand exalted ruler, is full of hope for a return of better conditions throughout the whole land.

The Property Committee of the local Elks lodge has been named as follows: A. A. Firmage, chairman; Arthur Poff, secretary; Grant M. Cole, Elmer Hess, Paul Mussen, C. W. Brown, W. P. Jensen and Moses G. Cardon.

PRECEDING EVENTS

In an effort to lead a neighbor, Bill Ingraham, in a business way, Chicago agency of a life insurance company, wrote him a letter to his wife, Julia, of Indianapolis. Her accusation, while Jim for stationer and he takes a short vacation. On the day after, Edith, with her own personal belongings, left the "wise ones" house. She had been his wife's best friend. She had been his wife's best friend. She had been his wife's best friend.

CHAPTER V—Continued

"Well, I won't have it!" Mariner growled. "I can't stand this place nor this—peasant business! I've had about all I can stand of you, Patterson. I'm feeling that way about you. I've got on to a big thing. I've put my heart's blood into it. I've been working over it twenty hours a day, when I get up in the morning, and you won't even listen. And then you tell me I've been short of money. You've been short of money. You've been short of money."

CHAPTER VI

The Sacrifice.

THAT old thing, the length of the road, was that Edith dared not let herself think about. She didn't mind any of the incidents of the job, taken by themselves at the time along. It wasn't hard, not so hard, after the first week, as school. She had a few dollars here and there, handed her in a regular pay envelope every Saturday afternoon. Infinitely more than she had ever had before. It was a thing, twice a week, when she banked to know that the bank balance was especially low. There was a little more than she had ever had before. It was a thing, twice a week, when she banked to know that the bank balance was especially low.

PRESENT WORRIED

She—This is my birthday. He—Just think, we'll be married in a few months. She—Never mind the future, how about the present?

A REAL TREAT

Concocted Pianist—I am going to offer you a treat. What shall it be? See—Oh, there's just the grandest make it a chocolate nut sundae for me!

DIDN'T DOUBT HIM

"That druggist has said scales of weight—He's a little bit of anything." "I have no reason to doubt your word—I've dealt with him at times."

Time's Changes

A globe trotter was leaning at the bar of a tavern in a tople land when a young and handsome fellow walked in. "Didn't I see you walking stick here?" he said. "I've been to lose it. It's not the same man, but the thing he's proud of forgetting it is a 'stick' sticker for the convalescent who says 'I'm a grand-grandson of the cannibal king, Cokoban, who strangled his mother's five wives—'Exchange."

OH!

"I told him it was coming around to night, but he wouldn't let me go. 'If you are Mr. Gorman,' he said, 'he was expecting you to come.'"

BARRON OF GOOD SENSE

Question—Why is it you won't marry me? You said it would be soon. Answer—Because, there's some one who'd object. And my husband is the man.

A dab of powder here and there is certainly worth the price

You know that a little powder now and then is well worth the money it costs. In fact, compared with the effect, the price is so trifling you hardly consider it at all.

Yet the cost of electricity is just as moderate. Consider the examples below. They are typical. Where else does a penny buy more than in electric service?

... but where do you get more for your money than in buying Electric Service?

Stock Show Best Ever—Sever Rodero, successful farmer and stockman of this city and Albert Chestang, traveling salesman, have returned from Ogden where they went to attend the annual livestock show. Mr. Rodero in commenting on the show, says it was the best he has ever seen from the point of view of fat cattle. The attendance Saturday and Sunday was estimated from Ogden where they went to attend the annual livestock show.

Club Gives Party—Jack Taylor was guest of honor at a party given at the club rooms of the Imperial club on Tuesday night this week. Mr. Taylor has been the popular accompanist of this organization for many years and has endeared himself in the hearts of every club member. His departure for Salt Lake this month to make his home is a source of much regret by his associates.

Scholarship Cup—Presentation of a scholarship cup to the fraternity maintaining the highest scholarship average for the year 1930-31 was made in the Utah State Agricultural college students body assembly on Wednesday. The cup was awarded to Alpha Gamma Phi fraternity, which had an average of 86.46 per cent for the year. Phi Kappa Alpha were second and Beta Kappa's were third in the contest. Rex Dibble, representing the Pan-Hellenic council, made the award. All fraternities on the campus maintained an average of over 81 per cent for the entire year.

Statist Records—While on the coast during the holidays Engineer Eugene Schaub made a study of the records in the offices of the auditor and recorder in the Hall of Records. He also studied the method of making assessments in the assessor's office. Mr. Schaub says at Riverside, he made a study of aerial photography which is in vogue in the assessor's office. Photographs of the country are taken and the physical conditions shown in the photographs are checked with the assessment rolls. The photos show the divisions of land, orchards and improvements on the land.

Seek County Assistance—F. P. Champ, member of the Cache county drought commission and R. L. Wrigley, county agent, met with the county commissioners on Wednesday and asked for an appropriation for the expense in connection with securing loans on livestock handled by the county commission. Reuben Hansen who assisted the commission incurred an expense of approximately $200 in the appraisement work. It was believed by Mr. Champ that this expense could be handled by Cache county paying $150, chamber of commerce $50; Farm Bureau $50 and the local banks $50. The government has refused to make an appropriation to pay this expense up to date. It is expected the secretary of agriculture will meet this expense at a later date.

There is a very fine and interesting story from the sub-zero temperatures and the snow covered hills surrounding Lake Placid in northern New York to sunny California and the speed and endurance of each other.

Colds are common because people are careless. Prompt use of aspirin will always check a cold. Or relieve your cold at any stage. And genuine aspirin can't hurt you. Take two tablets of Bayer Aspirin at the first indication of a cold, and that's usually the end of it. If every symptom hasn't disappeared in a few hours, repeat. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. Take enough to give complete relief. And if your throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in water and gargle away all soreness. In every package of genuine Bayer Aspirin are proven directions for colds, headaches, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis. Millions who used to suffer from these things have found winter comfort in aspirin.

Briggs L. Melvin, research secretary of the committee on Farm and Home Housing of the President's conference on home building and ownership, will tell National Farm and Home Hour listeners what side to planning farm and city houses can be had from the committee, which he speaks in the United States Department of Agriculture period of the Farm and Home Hour on Wednesday, January 20, and will feature a program on agricultural subjects.

Many Government Speakers on Air

Five hundred and fifteen broadcast hours were utilized by the United States government over the radio in the National Broadcasting company during 1933. M. H. Ayresworth, president of the company, reports.

The United States Department of Agriculture made the greatest use of radio during the year. Exactly 250 hours of the National Farm and Home Hour broadcast each week day at 11:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., central standard time.

President Hoover, Mr. Ayresworth's report shows, spoke 29 times which is the greatest number of times any speaker has been heard over the radio in one year. Vice President Curtis made three radio addresses, Mr. Hoover, Mr. Charles Brandegee, spoke five times. Every member of the cabinet faced the microphone at least once during the year.

Thirty-two members of the senate made 72 radio addresses, and members of the house spoke 25 times. America's three service bands were heard in 241 contests, many of which were on the National Farm and Home Hour. The Army band broadcast 105 times, the Marine band 71 times, and the Navy band 67 times.

Since his inauguration President Hoover has made 65 radio addresses. In his seven years as President, Calvin Coolidge spoke only 27 times over the radio. Many of President Hoover's addresses were made direct from the White House.

Another episode in the expert eyes of the United States Forest Rangers will be given on Thursday, January 21. This series, inaugurated last month, is drawing a far greater interest in forest fire prevention and protection.

Tom might have known her office. He took her to the office and gave her a glass of warm milk. She was holding the samples of letter paper and her big albums of envelopes before him and he started a rain of questions.

"You had some of that mauve paper, with programs put on," he said. "My girls are both in college now. They want to use that mauve paper with the green enamel with black flourishes, and there were flowers about—flowers a girl would use. Because he had a bunch from the variety of them they were brought by a lot of stupid men who probably put them under their beds. I have a few more than they wanted a glass of warm milk."

"You came along on my next call day—it will save you troubling to come here," suggested Sue sweetly.

"You'd wouldn't have you carry these great albums about like that. I can come here very easily—no trouble at all."

"I must say, all the men are very nice to me, but I can assure you a quite used to it—carrying my albums about. She didn't say more or less directly to Tom. "You see, I'm a business woman, pure and simple, and except to do these things."

"You are no doubt pure and honest, but you're not simple—not at all," said the latter of Sue's admirers. And that was not of personal note he thought it best to go back to his subject. And he told her of the new stationery, to the girls.

"But Mr. Jacks, were completely packed up in a paper clip last month," expostulated Miss Tom. "Ah, ha," laughed Tom. "I know that distinctive stationery in business is a great asset. From the first of the war it will be the finest that is made."

And Tom Jacks, Inc. certainly did blossom forth in some pretty good money. He was an expert printer. His associates began to suspect that Tom was acquiring temperamental and hoped for the best.

was originated by a Nome lawyer, Albert Fink a dog lover and experienced musher. Associated by a company of friends he raised a fund of $10000 to be awarded to the winners and they spread the word of the derby. The result was that Nome was packed with spectators and a long string of famous dogs and experienced mushers ready for the race. It was won by John Hennessey, who ran the 48 miles across the book wilderness and back, after a steady grind, night and day, in 110 hours and 15 minutes—and most of the way he had to fight one of the most severe Arctic blizzards known in the history of Alaska.

Entered in the second race was a youthful hardware clerk whose name was destined, in later years, to occupy a romantic place in the annals of the northland. Scotty Allen, in odd hours at the store, had managed to assemble a team of dogs of doubtful value as racers. His story was regarded as a joke; he was asked how he had got up the nerve to list himself as a competitor in the 1900 classic. In 1910 he was defeated by "Iron Man" John Johnson, who on that day had a record never duplicated over his 98 miles, thanks to an exceptional team, his race skill and a good break in weather. John's time was 73 hours and 18 minutes, the fastest ever made in dog racing in the north.

But Scotty Allen was not discouraged. Back he came for another trial in 1921, and cut two hours and five minutes off his previous record. He is the only man who has won three championships. In 1922 he was the first to win the distinction of always finishing a race, irrespective of weather or condition of his dogs. In 1916 Scotty took 449 other sled dogs to France; for distinguished service he was decorated by the French government with the Croix de Guerre.

The same world conflict that claimed Allen drew the other men of Alaska—and the ranks of the racers became so depleted that it was impossible to hold the big race. Thus the 1916 derby was the last. During that winter a company of sourdoughs met in Le Pas, Man. The race track was revived. It was suggested that the winter derby be held on the coast of the 600 prize and the date was set for May 1st. The race was a 150-mile course from Le Pas to Elm Flon, mushroom mining town, and back.

Few preparations were made; the drivers used ordinary dogs; they themselves were unskilled in the art of racing, and a bitter struggle followed across that track. The race was a 150-mile course from Le Pas to Elm Flon, mushroom mining town, and back.

Now that time the growth of the dog derby has been rapid until now such races are held in different parts of the United States, Canada and Alaska. Outstanding among them besides the one at Le Pas already mentioned, are the annual races at Poland Spring, Maine; Laconia, N. H.; Ashton, Idaho; Prince Albert, Saskatchewan; Quebec, and Fairbanks, Alaska. The American dog derby at Ashton, Idaho, is run each year on Washington's birthday over a 25-mile course, and attracts a large crowd of spectators from all over the Northwest.

Perhaps the best known of all the dog races is the Eastern International dog derby held at Quebec during the third week in February each year where "world championships" are awarded the winners. There assemble the winners of the other contests, to race over a course of about 120 miles, run in parts of 40 miles a day.

Quebec attracts the best drivers and teams from all parts of America, and rivalry runs high during the three days, attaining a fever heat on the last day of the race. The winner of the world championship in the first international was Arthur T. Walden, of New Hampshire, experienced Alaskan sough musher, who started trailing dogs across the frozen wilderness back in 1860, during the gold rush and who was dogmaster with Commander Byrd in the Antarctic.

In 1923 the international was won by a French Canadian, Jean Label, of Quebec, much to the elation of the Canadian. Earl Hedges of Le Pas, took the next championship, and into the arena of the 1925 derby stepped young Emilie St. Godard, still in his teens to begin his unparalleled record in dog racing. He is now the only man who has won three championships. Frank Dupuis won the 1926 race over St. Godard by a margin so narrow as to make the race one of the most thrilling, and to establish a new time on the trail. In 1927 and 1928 St. Godard entered with a string of seven wonderful dogs. This was the third year he had made a determined bid to win the world championship, and from start to finish, Seppala ran one of the most spectacular races ever held in Quebec—or anywhere else. Not only did he defeat St. Godard's own team, but he broke St. Godard's own record, and again outdistanced him by ever seen; and they were awarded the completed prize, something unusual in the annals of dog races. Usually this award goes to some driver who trails in later and who has saved his dogs in the mad dash over the snow.

It is now drivers and such dogs as these who will compete in the Olympic contests at Lake Placid within the next few weeks.

The sled dogs are trained for their life work just as soon as they are able to walk; they are tied up and soon acquire the habit of pulling. At about sixty days of age they are given over to the care of boys, who harness them to small sleds or wagons. The dogs appear to be willing to do this playacting in the harness, and come to enjoy the harnessing. Any number of dogs may be used in a team, although 10 is about the limit.

AS SCIENCE VIEWS ADVANCE OF MAN

Erect Position Put Him Above Beasts.

From a single fossil skull discovered in the desert hills of Central America, Sir Colin MacKenzie deduced the fact—or at least the conclusion—that the erect posture of man assumed the erect position. He was then like any other beast of the jungle. Any bigger beast might tread him to death under its feet. Mastery was a matter of size. But one day, the beast, growing in the hot grass, through some accident, or from the help of a stump or a rock, kept upon his hind legs. In that position he saw above the grass. He is enabled to observe the activities of the possible predator who will grind him to death, and to hide from him. With this incident, this growing creature's relative advance began. From that time on, and his species struggle to become a more advanced creature. They employ craft; they learn a superior mode of physical progression, and thereby they attain a superiority over other creatures.

A step surely resulting from this was the liberation of the opposable thumb—forces from the function of progression and they gradually increased in length and rounded in shape. With practice, now, the creature's foot paws became hands. By development, one of these paw paws became a thumb, which was used as a paw. The claws—now fingers—so that the creature can seize and hold any article. Now the animal who is on the road to become a man has reached a point of superiority to the ape, all of whose "fingers" are in a row, which does not possess the opposable thumb. Counting by thousands of centuries, the new "man" now gets beyond the use by legs and hands. Without the opposable thumb the "man" would have remained in the half erect, or, on occasions, erect position of the ape. Together with erect posture and the opposable thumb made man the master of his own evolution. "Thoughts are expressed, of course at the stage noted the "mind" is to come. That is now an inevitable thing. For the improvement achieved makes the newly developed species gregarious. Superior individuals learn to dominate their fellows. Communication becomes necessary. Language is developed from grunts and squeaks. Society is evolved. Thoughts are expressed. Thus from the bones and muscles of the legs, from the bones and muscles of the hands, an "intellectual development" has been evolved. The great thing was to get started and the start was the erect posture.

"Good news," says the professor. But of course all this is not a demonstration. It is only a speculation. Sir Colin MacKenzie's notion about the dependence of intellectual development on muscle is pure Lamarckism. Lamarck was a French naturalist who was born in 1744 and died in 1829. He was the forerunner of Darwin, who accepted his doctrine of "acquired characters." What Lamarck taught is concerned in his account of the manner in which a giraffe acquired his long neck. An ordinary antelope who lived in a South African region where, from increasing aridity, food for the antelope on the earth's surface disappeared, could graze only at the tops of trees. Such individual giraffes as had the longest necks could reach the tops of the trees. These individuals survived when their shorter-necked fellows perished; it was they who propagated their species, which became increasingly long-necked. The primitive man, getting on his feet in the tall grass, is practically doing the same thing that Lamarck's giraffe did.

Sir Colin MacKenzie's deductions from the discovery of the skull in the Australian desert demonstrate that Lamarck is coming to his own in the field of evolutionary science. They demonstrate nothing else—that is, as yet—Boston Transcript.

Tidal Phenomena

There is only one high tide and one low tide in the Gulf of Mexico each day. The diurnal inequality has become exaggerated to such an extent as practically to extinguish the semi-diurnal tide in the inner parts of the gulf, giving high and low water only once daily. Normally there are two high and two low tides every 24 hours, but there are numerous variations in tidal phenomena in various parts of the world.

Stagnant Himalayan Tribe
A tribe of "Methuselahs," three of whom claim to be one hundred and forty-five years of age and who live in caves 22,000 feet above the sea level in the Himalayas, are described by Dr. Irvin Baird, who recently arrived in London after a visit to these wonderful people. "There are about 600 of them," Doctor Baird said, "and they are all of good physique. Their women are really beautiful. They live solely on vegetable substances." Doctor Baird added that he intended to return to discover the secret of their longevity.

Education in China
Until very recent years very few people in China received any education, and the education of this few was confined to a so-called classical system. Probably one of the most outstanding of the new cultural forces in China is the new educational system. The most revolutionary changes of this system are the granting of educational facilities to women and the introduction of co-education in primary schools. Of the vast number of Chinese characters, 1,000 of the most essential have been selected for use in the people's schools, and are exclusively used in the writing of appropriate popular books.

Oklahoma Girl
Strong as Boy
"Louise Alice was fretful, nervous and all run-down from whooping cough," says Mrs. F. J. Kolar, 1730 West 22nd St., Oklahoma City, Okla. "The little I could force her to eat wouldn't ever digest. She became thin, listless, and weak."
"Then I decided to try California Fig Syrup, and the results surprised me. Her bowels started working immediately, and in little or no time she was eating so she got to be a peep at the table, always asking us to pass things. Her weight increased, her color improved and she began to romp and play again like other children. Now she's the picture of health and strong as a boy."
Pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable California Fig Syrup acts surely and quickly to cleanse your child's stomach and bowels of the souring waste that is keeping her half-sick, bilious, yellow, feverish, listless, weak and puny. But it's more than a laxative. It tones and strengthens the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally, of their own accord.
Over four million bottles used a year shows its popularity. Ask for it by the full name, "California Fig Syrup," so you'll get the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 60 years.

(Continued from Page One) party's Outer development in Bear River Narrows in Boulder county, the land comprising the reservoir lying west of Logan, on both sides of the river and extending from Mendon on the south to Smithfield on the north, and in the Conservation district on the west side of Cache valley succumbed to the depression. Mr. Bullen succeeded the late H. E. Hatch as trustee for a syndicate that advanced in excess of $100,000 to save the district, and Mr. Bullen now has over 1000 acres on the west side land under his control and management.

In commenting on his election to this new position Mr. Bullen said: 'The Northern Building Loan Society confines its building operations to Logan and Cache valley, and as Cache valley is purely agricultural thereby making it most unstable and less subject to fluctuations which localities whose people look to other and varied pursuits for livelihood, the securities back of the savings of the stockholders of this society are among the safest and best in the world. The thousands of mortgages that are being foreclosed today, throughout the country, to the detriment of honest, able home owners are, for the most part, being foreclosed by financial institutions who hold a short time loan, and from which the owner finds it impossible to extricate himself. There is only one kind of loan for the home owner and that is a long term, monthly repayment, no maturity low cost contract. I built my home on this plan, my children have matured stock in a building loan society, and it is the only safe and sure way under the sun' for the struggling boys and girls of today to acquire and pay for a home. The Northern Building Loan Society, with President A. E. Anderson of Logan state as its president is a Cache valley institution, or a northern Utah institution, and in such a condition and with such favorable prospects for a safe field for its future operations, that its officers and stockholders can without any reservations whatsoever recommend to all of their friends and fellow citizens that they begin and continue to save the Northern Way.'

Congress Approving the President's Rehabilitation Program Step by Step—Oliver Wendell Holmes Resigns From the Supreme Court

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

ONLY eight senators out of 51 voting opposed the passage in the senate of the administration bill creating a reconstruction finance corporation that will extend $2,000,000,000 credit to banks, insurance companies, railroads, mortgage loan companies, farm credit and other associations. A similar measure was rushed rapidly through the house, and before the close of the session President Hoover had the satisfaction of signing the act embodying his reconstruction plan for the financial rehabilitation of the country.

Debate of the measure in the senate was chiefly over proposed amendments, many of which were offered and few were adopted. The most important amendment adopted was proposed by Senator Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina. It added a new section to the bill authorizing an appropriation of $50,000,000 for use by the secretary of agriculture to extend loans to farmers. It stipulated further that the $45,000,000 now remaining in the reconstruction fund should be applied to such loans.

During the discussion there were frequent and force attacks on the reconstruction program, especially the "international" variety which are being accused of questionable business and ethics in the treatment of foreign securities in the United States.

Eight men who refused to vote for the bill were all from the western states. They were Norris of Nebraska, Brookhart of Iowa, Borah of Wisconsin, a "progressive" Republican, and Bratton of New Mexico, Holow of South Dakota, Connally of Kansas, and Thomas of Oklahoma, all Democrats.

PROCEEDING with the economic program, the senate put through the bill increasing the resources of the Federal Reserve Bank by $1,500,000,000. A subcommittee held hearings on the $150,000,000 home loan discount bill and $200,000,000 depositors' relief bill.

The senate finance committee continued the taking of testimony relating to the deals of our international bankers in foreign securities, and it was often most interesting. For instance, it was brought out that Secretary of State Stimson and Francis Whitely, assistant secretary, acted as a party in introducing an alleged misunderstanding between the Colombian government and a syndicate headed by the National City company, which early in 1931 temporarily withheld a payment of $4,000,000 on a $20,000,000 credit arrangement.

Oliver C. Townsend, formerly commercial attaché in Peru, said he was severely reprimanded for making a pessimistic report on the financial status of Peru when that country was trying to float a loan in the United States. The State department defends its actions in the instances in question.

NEARLY ninety-one years old and growing feeble physically, Oliver Wendell Holmes voluntarily brought to an end his service of 30 years as associate justice of the supreme court of the United States. The venerable and respected jurist announced his resignation to President Hoover, who reluctantly accepted it. Mr. Holmes, former chief justice of the United States, was widely known as "Old Boy" and "The Great Dissenter."

Justice O. W. Holmes was born in Ohio. He was educated at Harvard and served in the army during the Civil War. He was appointed to the supreme court in 1889 and served until 1932. He is survived by his wife and several children.

THOSE Democrats who oppose the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Presidency felt they had gained a point when the national committee sold the national convention to Chicago. "Sold" is the right word, for the committee granted the majority to the party that wanted the most money for the convention's expenses. The Chicagoans offered $200,000 outright. The opening date is June 27.

RETURNING to the doings of congress, the house war committee began its hearings preliminary to drafting a bill for increase of taxes. Secretary Mellon of the treasury and Undersecretary Mills were called to explain their department program. The committee also heard testimony from several members of the military and naval staffs. The committee is expected to report on the bill by the end of the session.

of Texas for impeachment of Secretary Mellon. The Texas set forth his charges of "high crimes and misdemeanors" based on Mr. Mellon's alleged connection with business in violation of law. The secretary was represented by Alexander W. Grege, former solicitor of the internal revenue bureau.

Mrs. HATTIE W. CARAWAY of Arkansas, widow of Senator T. H. Caraway, is now a senator in her own right. Having been elected to that high post by the people of her state. She is the first woman ever elected to the senate. Her victory at the polls was a foregone conclusion as soon as the Democratic nomination fell. There were two "independent" candidates, but they didn't get many votes. Mrs. Caraway made no campaign.

ATTORNEY General William D. It is in the tail of one of these that he observed the growth of nerve cells, which, according to scientists, has proved one and for all that the nerves do not grow as a result of cells forming a chain, but that each nerve grows out of a single cell in a central nervous system. Doctor Spelid is professor of anatomy in the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

—Briefly Told for Busy Readers

A GOOD RECORD.
SHEEP MEN ASK AID.
IDAHO METALS FALL.
MUST PAY INCOME TAX.
REFINERY IS PLANNED.

BOISE, IDA.—The value of the gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc mines in Idaho in 1931, according to estimates by United States Bureau of Mines, Department of Commerce, was about $11,728,248. The smallest since detailed records were started in 1905; the total value of the same metals in 1930 was $21,094,807.

PROVO, UT.—More than 20 persons were arrested for sheriffs of other counties and goods valued at approximately $10,000 recovered by Utah county officers during 1931, according to the annual report of the sheriff of county.

VERNAL, UT.—Reports from the Hill and Willow Creek sections, 40 miles south of Vernal on the east side of Great river, are that approximately 50,000 additional sheep are being fed this winter.

SALT LAKE CITY, UT.—The fact that sheepmen did not receive any individual income tax blank does not excuse a resident of Utah who has failed to file a 1931 return. The net income is large enough, an income tax. It is pointed out by the state tax commission that the duty is incumbent on the resident of paying his tax. For the convenience of the taxpayer, the commission is forwarding blanks to livestock owners whose names it has on file. But the fact that a resident's name is not in the file is no excuse for not paying under the new income tax law.

ST. GEORGE, UT.—There were authorized to graze during the season of 1931 within the Pkale Forest 11,500 cattle and horses, with 500 exempt from permit. This included 100,000 head of stock and stock used in connection with permitted operations which require no permit. Sheep and goats numbered 70,000 also were permitted to graze. In the forest are approximately 12,000 acres. The Pkale division of the forest contains the following areas by counties: Garfield, 10,337; Iron, 25,633; Kane, 70,373; Washington, 38,871; total, 120,214 acres.

SALT LAKE CITY, UT.—Resolutions urging that federal control be exercised over the public domain in Utah and that steps be taken for its rehabilitation, featured the sessions of the Utah Woodworkers' association meeting. Other resolutions requested federal appropriations for control of predatory animals; demand for stock raising and support for the national wool marketing corporation, keeping big game animals within fenced limits and a maximum price of eight cents a head and board for sheep.

RENO, NEV.—The value of the mine production of gold, silver and copper, lead and zinc in Nevada decreased from $21,452,715 in 1930 to about $10,529,200 in 1931, according to a preliminary survey issued by the Department of Commerce. Compared with the 1930 production there were decreases in the output and value of all metals.

SALT LAKE CITY, UT.—Retail food prices in Salt Lake City decreased 2 per cent, about the same as 50 other leading cities, during December, as compared with November. The decrease for all 51 cities amounted to 10 per cent since December 15th, a year ago. During December 22 food articles decreased in price, with pork chops the most, with a drop of 13 per cent.

NEPHI, UT.—One half ton of cracked corn has been received by the Utah Grain Growers' and Shoppers' Association from Springfield to be distributed to various parts of the valley as seed for the plowmen. The heavy snows have covered practically all of the feed up, and it is necessary to feed the birds in order to keep them from starving.

LOGAN, UT.—The 43rd annual meeting of the Western day will be held at the Hotel Grand at the University of Nevada, January 20. Results of recent experiments in lamb feeding will be published and various contests will be conducted. A knowledge of the relative efficiency of different feeds available to Utah livestock feeders will, in all probability, be a vital factor in helping to relieve losses next year and for this reason farmers and feeders should attend the meeting.

SALT LAKE CITY, UT.—The state tax commission has appropriated to 21 counties and the state treasurer $100,775.44 revenue from the 1931 car company tax.

MURRAY, UT.—Recreational use in the Wasatch National forest has not been affected adversely by the drought. The revenue from a 22 per cent increase of visitors over 1930, according to a report of the forest ranger, the total visitors were estimated to be 105,000. This exceeds any previous year, and represents an increase of 35,000 over the year of 1930.

CASPER, WYO.—Plans are being made for the erection of a new 1,000-horsepower refinery in the Osage oil field.

Life Insurance Forges Ahead

An article in The Index points out what a great factor life insurance is in American life today. The total insurance in force—$108,000,000,000 at the end of 1930—is far greater than that of any other country.

At the end of 1900, according to The Index, there was $113 of life insurance in force for every man, woman and child in the country.

More and more people, and especially those of small means, are realizing that a policy in a sound life company is not only a protection for dependents, but an interest-paying investment, second in safety to nothing save federal securities.

Do It Now

I prepared all things—therefore, if any man shall take of the abundance which I have made, and impart not his portion, according to the law of My gospel, unto the poor and the needy; he shall, with the wicked, lift up his eyes in hell being in torment.

If there shall be properties in the hands of the church, or any individuals of it, more than is necessary for their support—it shall be kept to administer to those who have not, from time to time, that every man who has need may be amply supplied and receive according to his wants.

It is ridiculous and out of place for a people to claim the gospel who do not live the gospel.

GENERAL BUSINESS CONDITIONS

From the Monthly Bank Letter for January issued by The National City Bank of New York

YEAR-END legislation decreasing the security of commodity markets, and concern over railway problems, have made the German situation in December a month of business difficulty in the United States, according to the monthly economic review published by The National City Bank of New York.

Little change in the character of the trade news is noted. The review stresses progress made toward the creation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation proposed by President Hoover.

Sketch of the Life of Moses Thatcher

Ever since the earliest settlement of Cache valley there have been unusually strong, faithful, intelligent, public spirited leaders, among whom were Moses Thatcher.

Like all great men he came to the front over a rugged path. As a boy of four years of age he suffered the affliction of the convulsions of 1847.

When the division politically into party lines, Moses Thatcher aligned himself with the Democratic party and became a strong factor in its activities.

While holding the position of president of the Cache Stake, in April, 1875, by President J. W. Cannon and Arthur Brown were by a narrow margin.

In connection with his business affairs he was in the Sunday School work and superintendent of the Sunday Schools of Cache valley nine years. During many years he served as a trustee not only to the older people but to the children, by his winning ways, his inspiring words and his unflinching determination.

An attitude of reasonable cooperation and confidence in regards reparations and government debts will be the most desirable on the business of the United States, according to the review.

"Great Britain has felt the pressure of imports upon her wool industries and recently has adopted the method of trade wars, but it remains to be seen whether trade wars, even if they bring the wool industry to its knees, will improve the wool trade position. The whole regarding the wool trade between nations is and adapting to the wool trade."

At the Fourth Semi-Annual general conference of the Y.M.C.A. held in the Salt Lake Assembly hall, Tuesday evening, April 6, 1890 John Thatcher nominated Apostle Elford Woodruff, Joseph F. Smith and Moses Thatcher as the president of that organization.

Where the Saints in Mexico were under a cloud of persecution, Moses Thatcher was sent to intercede in their behalf and his labors were crowned with success, thus proving that he was a clever international diplomat.

The mental and physical suffering of this lovable man during the last days of his life caused many moist eyes of his host of friends and co-workers in the cause of righteousness.

First-class Timber
Wisconsin's first forest was a Vermont one named Waterbury. In 1800 he planted white pine in the neighborhood of Ilanook. Today his planting is worth from $200 to $1,000 an acre, according to the department of agriculture and markets. In 1870 Waterbury planted 1,370 trees in recognition of the Philadelphia centennial. Out of that planting approximately 1,500 trees are still alive. The trees are 90 feet tall and average 11 inches or more in diameter. It will cut nearly 20,000 board feet of timber to the acre.

Just now he was looking at her, his gaze frankly curious. "Seems to me you've got a very pretty little girl here, sister, to be working in a dump like this. Give me the low-down on it. Why the answer?"

A phrase of her father's turned up, provisionally, in her mind. "A turnip's bigger than an apple seed," she said. "But it won't grow into a tree."

"Look here," he said, "that's pretty good." You ought to write advertising copy for a real business. If you ever want a new boss, get me to look in. How about the old man? Any chance that he'll come back tonight?"

"If you'll wait a minute," she said, "I'll see."

"She pulled up the telephone and called the number of Mr. Willard's office, and there was quite a lot of red tape about it. In order to keep her voice from shaking she had to speak to Mr. Willard's secretary, Miss Baldwin.

"Is this the Willard Manufacturing company?" she asked. "I'd like to speak to Mr. Willard's secretary, Miss Baldwin." She was in this Edith Patton. "She wasn't at the office," she said. "I'm sorry to hear that. I'm trying to find my father, she went on. "I'm sure you'll be able to get me to Mr. Willard this afternoon. He isn't here now, is he?"

"No," she said. "Miss Baldwin said, but he'd telephoned. Mr. Willard wasn't here now, either. He'd telephoned. I'm sure you'll be able to get me to Mr. Willard this afternoon. He isn't here now, is he?"

"That would be the Union League," she said. "I'll ask Mr. Willard's secretary, Miss Baldwin, if she could get me to Mr. Willard this afternoon. He isn't here now, is he?"

"I'll ask Mr. Willard's secretary, Miss Baldwin, if she could get me to Mr. Willard this afternoon. He isn't here now, is he?"

He Saved New Orleans

ASK the average American "Who saved New Orleans in the War of 1812 and he will answer "Why, Andrew Jackson, of course." That answer is correct, but it would be as correct to say "Capt. Samuel Chester Reid." And what is more surprising is the fact that Reid saved that historic city by fighting a battle on the sea several thousand miles away.

During the War of 1812 Reid was commander of an American privateer, the General Armstrong. On the night of September 20, 1814, his ship lay at anchor in the harbor of Florida in the island of Fayal in the Azores. Despite the fact that Horta was a neutral port, the British squadron, commanded by Commodore Loyal, came to attack the little American ship.

It was a bright moonlight night when Loyal sent his first attacking party of more than 100 men in four launches to land on the beach. The launches opened fire as they approached and Reid immediately returned, driving off the launches with heavy loss. Another attack was made at midnight with 14 launches and Reid again drove them off. The British squadron was then driven out. At daybreak an attack was made on the British flag, the Carnation, and she was then driven out.

Realizing that he could not resist another attack of the British ship, he was a victory that was more important than he realized. The British lost, and the Americans lost but two killed and seven wounded. Reid's ship was then ordered to sail for the United States. This squadron was part of the expedition that gathered at Jamaica for the attack on the British fleet and they had attacked the General Armstrong to capture her and use her as an auxiliary vessel.

But the British squadron was so crippled that it did not reach Jamaica until ten days later than the British expedition. The expedition was then ordered to sail for the United States. This squadron was part of the expedition that gathered at Jamaica for the attack on the British fleet and they had attacked the General Armstrong to capture her and use her as an auxiliary vessel.

Optimistic Dull

One of the most popular novelties displayed at the Leipzig fair last fall was a fortune-telling doll which announced hopeful prophecies of Germany's future. An ingenious device made it possible for the doll to distinguish between pessimistic and optimistic opinions in a highly optimistic spirit. The doll was named "The Doll of the Future," after the famous fortune-teller.

BOTTLING OF HEALTH WATER AT SODA SPRINGS

Utah Concern Organizes Idanha Mineral Water Company — Shipping to New York.

Ross Bartlett of Salt Lake City, manager of the Idanha Mineral Water concern which is placing on the market a health water bottled from the natural spring at Soda Springs, was in Logan on Thursday in the interests of his new company.

This company is developing the Idanha Springs and bottling the water for commercial use. Idanha water was first bottled way back in 1877 and for a long while it was a leading beverage throughout the intermountain territory. Brigham Young at one time is quoted as having said this water was one of the best known in the world for health. It is being flavored in all the best flavors and bottled for distribution throughout the nation.

A card has been ordered shipped to New York and the east and it is expected that the soda water centers are looking with favor on this water.

During last year it is said that 181,000 cases of soda drinks were being placed on the market at the new bottling works, were shipped into Utah from the east and from the west coast. Mr. Bartlett says his company will endeavor to build up an industry that will replace a large portion of this business.

Tree Planting Urged Upon Home Owners

The planting of trees is to be one of the principal ways of commemorating the two hundred anniversary of the birth of George Washington this year. The beautification committee of the Logan chamber of commerce suggests that all property owners plan to plant some trees this year. It will always be an easy matter to tell what kind of trees were planted and there will be a significance attached to it. So many of the soft woods in Logan are being cut down that it is very necessary that hard wood trees be planted every year to replace the soft woods. Other towns of the valley which can supply any number of fine hardwood trees at very reasonable prices.

Wm. A. Crockett, found dead—William A. It appeared that the man had been dead for at least 24 hours as the body was frozen stiff. Deceased was born January 6, 1858 and had therefore been a resident of Logan for 71 years. College Opera Very Successful Second Night

Under the direction of Professor N. W. Christiansen, student manager of the U.S.A.C. music department again continued their success in the second performance of "Rigoletto" at the Capitol Theatre Tuesday evening.

With ease, grace, skill and charm the ensembles of grand opera characters sang and played their parts into the heart of the second large audience which welcomed with enthusiasm the ambitious efforts of the college players and directors.

Patrons who have seen "Rigoletto" in Paris, Berlin, New York and Vienna acclaimed this amateur cast as pleasing and satisfying as any of the groups organized under the auspices of the national or foreign opera companies.

The success of the opera was greatly enhanced by the well-trained orchestra whose members responded to every stroke of the baton only as experienced musicians and masters of their notes can respond. The audience seemed to be in a state of rapt attention as many were heard to say that to hear a good orchestra nowadays at first hand is like applying balm to a wound because of the cuts and bruises inflicted by music of this class.

An artistic touch to the colorful production was added by the sprightly dancing of Julian Green and Vera Peterson who tripped about the stage with grace and abandon.

Professors Walter Weller and N. W. Christiansen were available to the students to explain their charges to develop immortal opera and to the cast and managerial staff by amateurs when the proper training is given by competent director.

MAGAZINE HAS PRAISE FOR LOGAN WOMEN

Project Begun in 1924 Completed During Past Season—Supply Library Equipment

In the "Independent Woman" the national organ of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, appears the following article which is of interest to Logan:

"The Logan (Utah) Business and Professional Women's club has proved the farsightedness, as well as community spirit of its leaders, by completing this year a project started in 1924, viz., the library. It is the time would come when Logan would have a library which would be worthy of the interested support of its citizens, the club started in a modest way to raise a library equipment fund. Through various projects it accumulated a total of $702.82 for the purpose. Early last spring it voted to take the first club in the State of Utah to the public library and make the project a continuing one, adding new equipment as the years go by. The club has now completed its project and is ready to contribute next winter. All who are on the employment list are asked to note of this and this year should give every effort to provide for next winter."

Vegetables Help Materially In Providing Necessities Of Life — Dr. Linford Urges Idea.

By M. R. Hovey, Secretary Chamber of Commerce.

It is almost certain there will be no Logan employment fund for next year. Those who contributed last year and are contributing this year the emergency will have passed and they should not fail to contribute next winter. All who are on the employment list are asked to note of this and this year should give every effort to provide for next winter."

In line with this suggestion Dr. J. H. Linford, chairman of the committee on beautification of the Logan chamber of commerce and one who knows by experience the possibilities of a small vegetable garden in helping to supply the necessities of life, has some very good suggestions for small vegetable gardens. Last year there was a shortage of irrigation water. The year indications are we shall have ample irrigation water. The suggestion is to utilize the vacant lots in the city in the form of vacant lots and otherwise be utilized for vegetable gardens. There are many vacant lots so that most of those on the employment list can secure ground for gardens. If these are properly taken care of, enough vegetables can be raised for summer use and to carry many families through the winter. Dr. Linford suggests that the Logan employment council take this up as a project now so that the plans can be worked out by the time spring planting is here. Each ward could be organized and most of the vacant lots could be utilized. This is a beautification standpoint, nothing looks better than a beautiful vegetable garden in the same time this year family is cared for.

'The Rainbow Trail' Packs Big Wallop

Laid against the awe-inspiring back ground of the most glorious scenery in the world, "The Rainbow Trail" features George O'Brien with a leading cast of stars. It is a picture of a woman of a story that is in every way worthy of its majestic subject.

Affording a great relief to those of us who are tired of the eternal triangle and gangster pictures is "The Rainbow Trail." Following it, it tells a straightforward and gripping tale of high adventure and romance. George O'Brien as Sheriff, and his home agents can penetrate into the very heart of the outer country in an effort to save three people who have been held semi-captive for many years.

Always one of the prime features of this reviewer, O'Brien never fails to hope for the best in his new film. Cecilia Parker, a newcomer who we love, was chosen to play the role of the heroine. Justifies the trust the Fox studio put in her.

Smithfield Youth Sustains Shattered Leg In Gun Play

Marshal Love Conveys Idea to Reporters that Much Mystery to Shooting—Deputy Sheriff Gives Version to Case.

GARDENS ON VACANT LOTS SUGGESTED AS RELIEF PLAN

The story related by the deputy sheriff is to the effect that Clayton and two other persons came to town unknown to the sheriff. Clayton was armed with a revolver and a pistol and it was then that the Smithfield resident fired, striking the two persons in the leg. It is believed at the hospital that the shattered limb will be healed. Early reports had it that two Logan youths were with Clayton in the fight and they were being investigated by Chief Gilbert Mechem and he says the case Saturday.

"At a visit to the office Sheriff Jeff Stowell this morning disclosed the fact that the sheriff had not received any reports from the Smithfield police. His deputies were both in Provo today, having taken a leave of absence to attend to a case for treatment. Sheriff Stowell says he will investigate the case Saturday."

"We must bear in mind that our organization calls for cooperation with all agencies who are interested in the development of agriculture and better home life in Utah," said Director Peterson.

"County and home agents can not select one certain group or organization with which to work. They must serve all alike," he continues.

The agricultural outlook as it affects Utah agriculture was clearly outlined by Professor W. P. Thomas and his colleagues in their upward trend in farm economy. Judging from the index of the last two months.

"It is almost certain that the farm products would be the first to be affected," said Professor Thomas, as the farm commodities are the first to be affected in price during the time of depression."

La Salle, the Green Adventurer

By ELM SCOTT WATSON

La Salle in February in the year 1823; the place is the Illinois river in what is now the state of that name; the actors in the epic drama which is now about to begin are some 18 Illinois and French soldiers and voyageurs. Not a very impressive company, it is true, but the leader of it is what makes it great. For the leader is Rene-Robert Cavalier, Sieur de La Salle, "magnificent adventurer" and one of the world's greatest explorers.

"La Salle," announced that they would take to their canoes. They lifted the light white birch-barks from the sledges, and slipped them into the icy water. The baggage and rifles went aboard, piece by piece, then man after man, soldier and voyageur, and red hunter stepped gingerly to his place, sank to a kneeling position, and took up his lough-banded paddle. First one light canoe, then another, pushed off from shore and the black current bore them away.

"To right and left they saw drab banks frosted and dark that rang under a blow, and hudson forests iron in their rigid desolation that rose despairingly toward an opaque gray sky. On the sixth of February, they emerged from the next three-quarters of a century and which was to result finally in the founding of a nation greater than either. It is this voyage which has been characterized as "one of the greatest epics of all history."

"To most Americans the name of La Salle is not another in a dimly-remembered list from their school-book histories. But now, 220 years after the beginning and the end of his great achievement, his name is brought to their attention again through the publication of two new volumes of his white race, one to be enrolled England and France in an almost unending war for the next three-quarters of a century and which was to result finally in the founding of a nation greater than either. It is this voyage which has been characterized as "one of the greatest epics of all history."

Thus began the historic voyage down the length of the "Father of Waters" which was to give France control of the interior of North America, which was to open up the vista of the richness of a new empire to the greedy eyes of the white race, one to be enrolled England and France in an almost unending war for the next three-quarters of a century and which was to result finally in the founding of a nation greater than either. Frontenac to the king and his ministers. In Paris La Salle found attentive listeners to his plans and when he returned to Canada in 1674 he brought with him a royal decree authorizing him to make discoveries and build forts in the interior of North America. He also brought back with him the man who was destined to be his chief lieutenant and greatest friend—Henri de Tonti, an Italian, "the man with the iron lungs."

"That winter La Salle and Tonti were busy completing a fort at Niagara and building a canoe for joint use on the western shore of the Great Lakes, was completed. On its way was a carved griffin from the armorial bearings of La Salle's patron, Count Frontenac, and this ship was enduring fame under the name of the Griffin. (Incidentally, it was more "enduring" than La Salle could possibly have realized, for within the last year the timbers from a wrecked ship were found in Lake Huron and there is strong evidence to support the belief that these timbers were once a part of the Griffin—found about more than 270 years ago.)

La Salle sailed his vessel to Michilimackinac where he acquired rich store of furs, then sailed on into Lake Michigan and finally dropped anchor in Green Bay where some furs were obtained. Sending the Griffin back to Montreal, La Salle started south along the Wisconsin shore and reaching the mouth of the St. Joseph he built Fort Monro. Then he struck across country to the upper Kankakee. From there he made his way down the Illinois to the present site of Tropic, Ill, where he built Fort Crevecoeur.

Leaving Tont in charge, La Salle started back to Canada. When he reached Niagara at Easter time in 1680 it was to find news of disaster. The Griffin with all of her rich cargo of furs had been lost. La Salle hurried on to Montreal and once there sought the aid of Frontenac. Again he was provided with the necessary equipment for carrying out his projects and within a few months he was again at Fort Frontenac and ready to join Tonti at Crevecoeur. Just as he was ready to leave, however, there came the news that the garrison at the fort on the Illinois had mutinied and destroyed the post.

La Salle's one hope now was that the faithful Tonti had held on and had saved something from the wreckage of his plans. But when he reached Crevecoeur, he found Tonti gone to Green Bay and the place deserted. Undaunted by this news, he set out on his way to the north. "Endoprogue Norman" pushed on down the Illinois until he reached the Mississippi. But his party was too small to attempt an expedition down this great river. So La Salle once more retraced his route northward. He spent the winter at Fort Miami, and in the spring he learned that Tonti was at Michilimackinac and there he hastened to hear from his trusted lieutenant the long tale of disaster. Of this interview an eye-witness writes: "La Salle was met by Tonti's hands and abandoned the enterprise; but far from this with a firmness and constancy that he had not expected from him, he refused, rather, ever to continue his work and push forth his discovery."

La Salle was now determined to continue with his plan for exploring the Mississippi. Returning once more to Fort Frontenac he replenished his supplies and in the autumn of 1681 he set out once more with Tonti. He retraced his route. Then followed his journey down the Illinois river to the Mississippi and the beginning of the great journey which took place 220 years ago.

la Salle found that the restlessness in his blood would never allow him to be happy in that role. The result was a journey in 1674 up the St. Lawrence, along the south shore of the long-passed passage to the Orient, and he determined to follow the river. So he sold his secretary to obtain funds, an expedition in July, 1674, he set out on his wanderings through the interior of the North American continent began. That trip carried him up the St. Lawrence, along the south shore of Lake Erie and then south through what is now the state of Ohio until he, in all probability, reached the Ohio River. But desertions among his followers forced La Salle to go back to Canada so his first expedition was something of a failure.

His resources were now exhausted but he found an unexpected friend in Count Frontenac, the "Iron Governor" of Canada, who gave him the exclusive trading privileges at Fort Frontenac (the modern Kingston) on the condition that he would rebuild the defenses and garrison the post. In the meantime Father Marquette and Louis Joliet had reached the Mississippi, the "Great Southwest river" and gone down it for a considerable distance, although they did not follow it to its mouth. So that honor still awaited La Salle.

However, he needed more capital, so in 1677 he made a trip to France with letters from

Corn That Makes Pork Pays Well

North Carolina Specialist Shows the Value of Feeding Grain.

All surplus corn should be converted into pork. Records kept on 13,798 hogs by country farm agencies during the past year prove that corn and pork has returned an average of $2 cents a bushel more than its local market value. This is a profit of 25 per cent of the crop of the past four years based on pork at the current price of $22.10 per bushel, more than its market value as corn," declares W. Frank Riker, agricultural specialist at North Carolina State College.

"Again this year, every farm should buy a few bushels of surplus corn for that farm. Many waste products can be supplemented and used as hog food, but hogs which are intended for slaughter, or market should be limited to the number sufficient to consume the surplus. It is not a good idea to let hog go into debt for what he eats."

Stays upon every farmer in North Carolina to keep one good brood sow each year for each 100 bushels of prospective surplus corn. This is a most profitable practice on the first of May and the first of November. Full feed her pigs a very liberal ration of corn and soybeans they are four, six weeks of age until they are sold. Sell them at the price and when returned to Canada in 1674 he brought with him a royal decree authorizing him to make discoveries and build forts in the interior of North America. WHO WAS WHO?

By Louise M. Constock

FRANKIE and Johnny were lowering "one" a few days ago, and a few of his many sisters perhaps took that Frankie and Johnny were real lovers, who lived in the neighborhood of St. Louis, Missouri, and that Frankie is still alive, a thick-set colored woman, now fifty-five years of age, with graying hair and a razor scar across some forty years ago received one check.

Frankie's mother has not gone to this house with "got her man who done her wrong," but the facts of her life may be of some interest. Frankie's mother and father were married and she was born in St. Louis, Mo. Her father, Albert Riker, later married Albert and still lives in St. Louis with his parents in 1861, and there, at an Orange Blossom, he met Frankie Baker, handsome but ten years his senior, and formed for her his fatal attachment.

Frankie's mother, Frankie Baker, in the ill-fated attachment of the Phoenix hotel lavishing on a pretty negro named Alice Fryer the attention she claimed to have actively as her own, took him home, and as the climax of a violent quarrel, which was a result of her jealousy with his own gun just as he was advancing on her with a drawn sword, she shot and killed her. Bees proved more troublesome than flames to volunteer fire fighters of Silver Springs, D. C. Speeding to a fire the volunteers met a bee swarm. The bees stung, the truck stopped and the firemen fought. When they finally reached the fire they found it under control.

Surnames at Standstill

No. LADIES have never actually worn glass slippers. Ration for Pigs
A good ration for weaning pigs can be made out of the several ingredients which are available as a supplement. There is no big advantage to be gained from soaking. A pound of ground wheat, oats and corn, equal parts, supplemented with 10 per cent tankage should make quite a satisfactory mixture for pigs in the first few days. If you use feeders you could feed the grain mixture in one and tankage in another.—Nobelsa Farmer.

Thus began the historic voyage down the length of the "Father of Waters" which was to give France control of the interior of North America, which was to open up the vista of the richness of a new empire to the greedy eyes of the white race, one to be enrolled England and France in an almost unending war for the next three-quarters of a century and which was to result finally in the founding of a nation greater than either. It is this voyage which has been characterized as "one of the greatest epics of all history."

la Salle found that the restlessness in his blood would never allow him to be happy in that role. The result was a journey in 1674 up the St. Lawrence, along the south shore of the long-passed passage to the Orient, and he determined to follow the river. So he sold his secretary to obtain funds, an expedition in July, 1674, he set out on his wanderings through the interior of the North American continent began. That trip carried him up the St. Lawrence, along the south shore of Lake Erie and then south through what is now the state of Ohio until he, in all probability, reached the Ohio River. But desertions among his followers forced La Salle to go back to Canada so his first expedition was something of a failure.

His resources were now exhausted but he found an unexpected friend in Count Frontenac, the "Iron Governor" of Canada, who gave him the exclusive trading privileges at Fort Frontenac (the modern Kingston) on the condition that he would rebuild the defenses and garrison the post. In the meantime Father Marquette and Louis Joliet had reached the Mississippi, the "Great Southwest river" and gone down it for a considerable distance, although they did not follow it to its mouth. So that honor still awaited La Salle.

However, he needed more capital, so in 1677 he made a trip to France with letters from

Wisconsin Man Points Out Value of the Silo

We could get a considerable silo and find that the entire corn plant has a feeding value, but at most one-third of the weight unless it is preserved in a silo. Sixty per cent of its feed value is lost if it is not preserved in a silo. If the corn is left standing, almost 25 per cent of the feeding value is lost. The preservation of the corn in a silo thus increases its value to 100 per cent. It is better to preserve the corn in a silo than to leave it standing and look it.

If the corn is shocked, the loss in weight is about 70 per cent and the feeding value is lost. It is better to preserve the corn in a silo than to leave it standing and look it.

Insulate Poultry House

Tests at Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station show that insulation for a 20 by 20-foot poultry house will cost about $70 and will save about $100 per year. If this cost is spread over the life of the house, it amounts to about two eggs per hen per winter. It is a small cost for a large saving. It is a small cost for a large saving. THE BARREFOOT BOY

During before the camera here a foot and with "turned-up" pants and a hat to make the outfit distinctive, a retired Lutheran preacher of Nebraska, recently got into the news for his antics as the original Barrefoot Boy. He inspired the American poet, John Greenleaf Whittier, to write his well-known poem, "The Barrefoot Boy," in the country. An examination of the details of his life, however, indicates that the poet's inspiration was being attended. Almost immediately after the poet's death, a Frank, freed-of-the-tolls-of-the-law, and himself, the pride of a woman, was avenged.

In a recent issue of the local daily, the editor in going after the President of the United States, wants "No More Millionaires" in the White House. AGGIES GO TO PROVO FOR SERIES

Coach Romney Will Have New Faces in Starting Lineup It Has Been Announced

The Aggies entered in a light practice session Thursday afternoon, prior to their departure this morning for Provo to meet the B.Y.U. cougars in their second hoop series of the year. The past week has been spent in experimenting on the weak forward positions, and Coach Dick Romney announced that one and maybe two new faces will be seen in the starting lineup tonight. He was reluctant to name who the newcomers might be, but whoever they are, they are going to be fighters who will rustle the ball as well as score. The Aggie lineup is still feeling the loss of Seth Parkinson, and none of this year's crop of forwards have suited him. There seems to be a vital spark missing somewhere as well as short in the second game with Montana State, and the approaching series with the Cougars is going to be a long way in determining the future starting lineup.

BASKETBALL TO BE PLAYED AT DANSANTE

Regulation Floor Makes New Gymnasium Attractive—First High School Game Tonight

The Logan Dansante will be put to practical use again tonight when the Grizzlies will clash with the South Cache high school basketball team in the first of the division series. During the past few days carpenters and other mechanics have been working on the place to make it into a regulation sized basketball court. The place will be properly heated and the regular high school games as well as practice games will be played on this floor.

Coach Burns Crookston's Grizzlies have been hitting up a good clip in the pre-season practice games. They are favored to win from Coach Cantrell Nielsen's quintet. However, there is always a chance for the team that isn't favored to win to spring a surprise.

The Dansante basketball court should prove to be the best basketball floor in the Cache territory. Besides having a regulation floor and ample seating for the spectators, there is also room for a practice floor. It will be safe to say that before the season has advanced very far, the commercial and mutual league games will be played at the Dansante.

The complete schedule for Cache division games during the season are as follows:

- January 22—Preston at North Cache; South Cache at Logan.
- January 28—Logan at Preston; North Cache at South Cache.
- February 5—Logan at North Cache; Preston at South Cache.
- February 12—North Cache at Logan; South Cache at Preston.
- February 19—Preston at Logan; South Cache at North Cache.
- February 26—Logan at South Cache; North Cache at Preston.

What Can Pay For Fire?
 Insurance will rebuild a destroyed factory, compensate for the burning of a stock of goods, and provide other indemnity, but nothing in the world can "pay" for fire.
 We cannot secure complete compensation for loss of time, of business, of employment, for the industrial stagnation fire sometimes creates. Nor can we measure human lives in dollars—and many thousands of these go to death via accidental cremation each year. Nor can anything compensate for a fire that absolutely brings to an end the development of a community—as a number of great conflagrations have done in the past, and may do again in the future.
 Fire insurance is one of the corner stones of our industrial civilization, but it cannot pay for indirect costs of fire which are often far greater than the direct costs.

The very stability of our great insurance industry has blinded most of us to these other vicious losses until we lose sight of the fact that fire prevention is not primarily in the interest of the insurance companies (whose rates are mathematically based upon the law of average), but is rather in the direct interest of every one of us in minimizing these unseen losses.

Questions And Answers About Income Taxes

Q. Must a person under 21 years of age pay an income tax?
A. A single person under 21 years of age earning more than $1,000 net a year must pay income tax on the amount over $1,000. A married person living with the husband or wife, must pay an income tax on anything over $2,000, net.
Q. Must a person under 21 years of age pay a filing fee?
A. A single person under 21 who pay no income tax do not pay the filing fee. Neither do married persons under that age who pay no income tax must also pay the filing fee.
Q. Who else pays the filing fee?
A. Everybody over 21 years old must pay the filing fee regardless of whether an income tax is paid or not, except that married women living with their husbands and having no independent do not have to pay the fee. Neither do the heads of wards of the state, students attending state institutions and in good standing in those institutions do not pay the filing fee.
Q. Do students in private institutions have to pay a filing fee?
A. Yes, if they are not dependent upon their parents or other persons who are liable for their support.
Q. How do you determine who is the "head of the family"?
A. Just as the federal government does. A person must be the head of a household in fact. We prefer to an ever you to no on specific race, rather than to interpret a universal rule.
Q. Suppose a person is single, but has a dependent and has a net income of $1,200 for the year. What is his status?
A. The fact that his net income was more than $1,000 for the year makes him eligible for the filing of the return. The fact that he has a dependent and only $1,200 income makes it unnecessary for him to pay a tax. However, he must pay his filing fee and send in his blanks properly filled.
Q. Suppose a wife has no separate income and her chief occupation is home-making, how should question No. 4 in form 40-A be answered?
A. The question is "Is this joint return?" No. 4 in form 40-A is answered "Yes," and the next question is "Does the husband have a separate income?" No. 4 in form 40-A is answered "No."
Q. Would it be necessary for the wife to pay a filing fee in this case?
A. No, only the husband would be required to pay the tax in the case mentioned.
Q. When does a wife pay a filing fee?
A. When she has a separate income. Can she file a joint return with her husband?
Q. Will she have to file a return on her own account?
A. Yes, and she will have to pay her filing fee. But she will not have to fill out blanks of gross income deductions, etc. All that will be taken care of in the joint return.
Q. Is it possible for a single person with one dependent to have a $200 personal exemption?
A. Yes, the "head of the family" is entitled to a $200 personal exemption. A single man with one dependent may be the head of the family.
Q. How do you determine who is the "head of the family"?
A. Just as the federal government does. A person must be the head of a household in fact. We prefer to an ever you to no on specific race, rather than to interpret a universal rule.

Fish and Game Being Fostered by Game Club

Dear Lake Game Warden Flavors Closing of Streams—Secretary Make Complete Report

Paris, Idaho—Bear Lake game clubs are active and alert to stock-keeping of the fish and game. Bear Lake with fish. Their efforts have been most successful during the past year and many thousands of fish have found their way here from state and federal hatcheries.

The present year promises to be no exception. The fish and game are now replenishing streams and bringing the lake to a higher level, considerable work is now being done by the organizations of the county.

A report of the Bear Lake Fish and Game Club closed by past Secretary W. W. Averill. Indicates various projects underway and many other proposed during the past year. The summary follows:

The wild fur bearing animals are becoming scarcer, and on account of harder times many trappers are turning their time and attention to catching the different kinds of fur bearing animals, which at the present time are in a state of depletion. The deer are decreasing on the Idaho portion of the Cache Forest from the heavy hunting, and every means should be used to get at the buck law enacted, as there are too many does and fawns now being killed on the Utah portion of this district the deer are increasing under the present buck law, with no scarcity of stags. Under the present Idaho deer law it will be necessary in a very few years to close the season to build up the herd, and this condition is to be deplored by the fish and game funds of the State for the protection and development of the fish and game resources.

Deer are decreasing on the Idaho portion of the Cache Forest from the heavy hunting, and every means should be used to get at the buck law enacted, as there are too many does and fawns now being killed on the Utah portion of this district the deer are increasing under the present buck law, with no scarcity of stags. Under the present Idaho deer law it will be necessary in a very few years to close the season to build up the herd, and this condition is to be deplored by the fish and game funds of the State for the protection and development of the fish and game resources.

At the present time very good cooperation is being received from the three sportsmen organizations in the county. Last spring was made a big netting by proclamation of the State Game Warden, which has been successful in securing a breeding ground and resting place for migratory birds.

Bloomington birds have been closed to fishing by order of State Game Warden until April 1, 1932, which is during his term of office. The object of this closing is to develop the Bloomington trout which was planted in only a small number of originally. A lake screen has been installed at the outlet of the Big Bloomington lake by the Bear Lake Fish and Game club to keep these fish in the lake.

Plans are under way to screen all the irrigation ditches on the west side of Bear Lake valley in the spring of 1932.

Bear Lake is being stocked with game fish but not on large enough scale, about by 2 million fish planted each year.

A government and state fishing ponds are badly needed for reducing the streams and Bear Lake in this valley. The fish and game resources of the National Forest and adjoining valley are inseparable and should be developed together as the possibilities in these resources is limited only by the money available and accessibility could not be bettered.

Captain Allopp Out of Hoop Series With Utes

Aggies Anxious to Win Games This Week End at Smart Gym—Crimson Team In Top Form for Series

Captain Warren Allopp is definitely out of the Utah series. Coach Romney stated Thursday night. The Aggie leader is still in bed with an attack of influenza, and even if he were able to don a suit in the series, he would probably be too weak to play. Roy Harris, who has been inserted in the vacant spot, has been showing up well in practice however. He has been used in a great deal at forward this season.

Virg Cropley has also been bothered by a cold but he did not play for the series. The rest of the starting five are in excellent shape and eager for the opening whistle Friday night. The Aggies can't forget the series in Salt Lake City last year, when the Utes won the entire division title from the Aggies by a one and two point margin, and they are anxious to avenge their defeat in the series being tonight.

Aviators Get Special Weather Report Service

Special weather forecasts made for aviators bring them up to the minute information on weather conditions as they speed through the air on their regular routes. These special forecasts usually cover only three or four hours and are issued by the weather Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture. They are based on the best general State forecasts issued for 20 hours in advance.

Aviation weather reports consist of sky and weather, ceiling, horizon visibility, wind direction and movement of upper-air currents at specially selected stations. They report barometric pressure, dew points, thunderstorms, squalls, and state of land and sea. They report snow, sleet, and rain for cloud formation, smoke, haze, all of which are vitally important to the aviator.

At most station aviation weather reports are received each hour simultaneously by means of connecting wires. The reports are available for the reports the weather Bureau has about 300 regular stations in all parts of the country, more than 50 airport stations, and about 300 secondary stations along the air lines.

A Smile From the Proposed Canal Route in France.

Two French cities, Bordeaux and Carcassonne, the former a great port and the latter a sleepy ancient inland town, are centrally in the way of the canal which France is planning to dig from the Atlantic ocean to the Mediterranean sea, thus affording a new waterway to the Mediterranean from the west.

Carcassonne is Two Towns.

Carcassonne straddles the River Aude, 50 miles southeast of Toulouse. Travelers arriving at the railway station in the so-called "old town" on the west bank of the Aude see the panorama for a city of antiquity, but it is not found on that side of the river.

Famous Walls of the Old City.

Across the River Aude, enter the city of the old town, and you are on a site which was occupied by a settlement several hours back in the time of the Phoenicians.

Commercial But Attractive.

Despite the fact that it is largely a commercial city, Bordeaux has a many respect, very attractive. The main part of the city curves around the left bank of the Garonne river, which at this point flows in a wide channel. Low white houses line the place of the monuments so characteristic of French cities built by the water.

Known as Sea Unicorn
 The narwhal, an Arctic whale, is known also as the "sea unicorn." Like the dolphin, it travels in schools, but it is seldom seen south of the polar sea. Little is known of it, but in the logs of old-time mariners, there was frequent report of the piercing of a vessel's hull by a narwhal's ivory tusk. Because the center of the tusk, or horn, is hollow, ivory of the narwhal has never achieved commercial importance.
