INTRODUCTION

The history of Virginia is not only told in books and records, it is also reflected in the numerous historic structures and sites that are located across the Commonwealth. In Rappahannock County, there are 13 historic properties and 6 historic districts listed in the National Register of Historic Places and the Virginia Landmarks Register. One of the historic districts, Skyline Drive, is also considered to be a National Historic Landmark.

In addition to these, there are over 960 properties in Rappahannock County that have been identified as having historic significance. These include homes, churches, cemeteries, commercial offices and stores, commercial lodging, restaurants, county government buildings, schools, post offices, mills, bridges, properties in Shenandoah National Park, and 6 additional historic districts.

The National Register of Historic Places

The National Register of Historic Places (NRHP) is the official list of the nation's historic places considered worthy of preservation. It was authorized by the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 and is administered by the National Park Service in conjunction with State Historic Preservation Officers, Tribal Officers, and Federal Preservation Officers. The Register is the official list of structures, sites, objects, and districts that embody the historical and cultural foundations of the United States and includes places of local, state, and national significance. It is part of a national program to coordinate and support public and private efforts to identify, evaluate, and protect America's historic and archeological resources.

There are more than 90,000 properties in the United States listed in the National Register. These properties tell stories that are important to a local community, the residents of a specific state, or to all Americans. The National Park Service maintains the National Register; for properties in Virginia, the Register is managed by the Department of Historic Resources (see below) in partnership with the National Park Service. The national register website is <https://www.nps.gov/subjects/nationalregister/index.htm>.

The National Historic Landmarks Program

There is one National Historic Landmark (NHL) in Rappahannock County – Skyline Drive Historic District, which spans an eight-county region.

There are over 2,600 properties in the United States designated as National Historic Landmarks, and they tell stories that are important to the history of the entire nation – not just local communities or states. These historic properties illustrate the heritage of the United States and come in many forms: historic buildings, sites, structures, objects, and districts. Each Landmark represents an outstanding aspect of American history and culture.

The NHL Program is administered by the National Park Service but the federal government owns fewer than four hundred NHLs. Most are owned by private citizens, organizations, corporations, tribal entities, or state or local governments. More than 200 National Historic Landmarks are located in or have boundaries that overlap with 125 National Park System units; this is the case for the Skyline Drive Historic District.

All properties designated as National Historic Landmarks are automatically listed in the National Register of Historic Places. The websites are <https://www.nps.gov/nhl> and <https://www.nps.gov/subjects/nationalhistoriclandmarks/index.htm>.

The Virginia Landmarks Register

The Virginia Landmarks Register (VLR) was created in 1965 by the Virginia General Assembly and is the Commonwealth's official list of places of historic, architectural, archaeological and/or cultural significance.¹ It is maintained by the Virginia Department of Historic Resources.

The VLR serves the same purpose as the National Register of Historic Places. The nomination of any Virginia site listed on the VLR can be sent forward to the National Park Service for consideration for listing on the National Register. All of the properties in Rappahannock County that are listed on the VLR are also listed on the National Register.² This is the case for almost all of the over 2800 sites listed on the VLR.

Listing in the VLR and the National Register is strictly honorary; officially recognizes the historic significance of a place, building, site, or area; encourages but does not require preservation of the property or historic district; offers limited protections to properties from potentially harmful federally- or state-funded activities; and may qualify owners for voluntary state and federal rehabilitation tax credit programs. Listing in the Registers does not prevent an owner from renovating or demolishing buildings; require an owner to restore or renovate property; restrict an owner's use of the property; increase property values or taxes; or regulate local governments or require creation of a local historic preservation program. Permission of a majority of private property owners is required for a property or a historic district to be listed in the VLR or the National Register.

A property that can be nominated for listing in the Registers should have achieved historical significance at least 50 years and/or is of exceptional importance and is associated with at least one of the following: an important event or historic trend; a significant person whose specific contributions to history can be identified and documented; an important architectural or engineering design, or it represents the work of a master, or it is a distinguishable entity although its components may lack individual distinction; has the potential to answer important research questions about human history (most commonly these properties are archaeological sites); and retains physical integrity through retention of historic materials, appearance, design, and other physical features. The website is <http://www.dhr.virginia.gov/historic-registers/>.

The Virginia Department of Historic Resources

The Virginia Department of Historic Resources (DHR) is the State Historic Preservation Office. Its mission is to foster, encourage, and support the stewardship of Virginia's significant historic architectural, archeological, and cultural resources as valuable assets for the economic, educational, social, and cultural benefit of citizens and communities. DHR carries out a variety of programs designed to recognize Virginia's historic resources and to encourage their continued preservation. These programs include, but are not limited to, the Virginia component of the National Register of Historic Places, the Virginia Landmarks Register, review of state and federal projects, state and federal rehabilitation tax credits, preservation easements, historical highway markers, and archaeological programs. DHR also administers grants to non-state entities. The website is <http://www.dhr.virginia.gov>.

The Virginia Cultural Resources Information System (VCRIS)

VCRIS is the Department of Historic Resources' statewide electronic cultural resources GIS and database. It provides access to electronic records for historic properties in DHR archives as well as an online submission system for recording new buildings, structures, landscapes, and archeological sites. Users of the system include professionals working toward compliance with environmental and historic preservation regulations. VCRIS includes an interactive web map and detailed information about each site, along with evaluative information about the historic significance of resources. The websites are <http://www.dhr.virginia.gov/v-cris> and http://www.dhr.virginia.gov/archives/archiv_vcrisHome.htm.

The Rappahannock Historical Society

The Society was formed in 1964 by a group of dedicated volunteers. Its offices are located in a historic brick two-story building in the town of Washington, Virginia. Of major importance to this document is the Society's Cemetery Project, which has investigated family cemeteries in the county and identified thousands of individuals buried there. Knowledgeable volunteers visited each cemetery and documented their findings including location of the cemetery, number of graves, names and dates on headstones when available, and condition of the cemetery. They also researched the owners of the land where the cemeteries are located through deeds, wills, and other documents to identify the families that were buried there.

Rappahannock County Properties in the National Register of Historic Places

In Rappahannock County, there are 13 historic properties and 6 historic districts listed in the National Register of Historic Places. All of these are also listed in the Virginia Landmarks Register. One of the historic districts, Skyline Drive, is also considered to be a National Historic Landmark.

The properties and districts are shown below in the order in which they were entered into the National Register, together with the date of listing.

(1) April 11, 1973 – Montpelier

VLR Listing Date 01/16/1973

DHR Reference Number 078-0028

NRHP Listing Date 04/11/1973

NRHP Reference Number 73002052

The core of this sprawling porticoed mansion of Montpelier in Rappahannock County was built in the mid-18th century by Francis Thornton, as a residence for his son William. The Thornton family settled here ca. 1740, obtaining a grant for thousands of acres, including the F. T. (Francis Thornton) Valley. On a hill with views down the F. T. Valley, the original farmhouse was enlarged in the mid-19th century with end wings, and the whole was united by a huge unacademic colonnade crowned by a bracketed cornice. The resulting edifice makes for an arresting, if provincial, composition with a wonderful backdrop of pastoral and mountainous scenery. Montpelier was inherited by William Thornton's son Dr. Philip Thornton, and remained in the family until 1876. Montpelier was renovated in the 1970s by James W. Fletcher, whose wife Mildred, was a descendant of Francis Thornton. The home is located south of Sperryville on State Route 231 (F.T. Valley Road).

(2) May 28, 1975 - Washington Historic District

VLR Listing Date 04/15/1975

DHR Reference Number 322-0011

NRHP Listing Date 05/28/1975

NRHP Reference Number 75002033

Updated Nomination VLR Approved: 9/6/2006; NRHP Approved: 11/21/2006

In the shadow of the Blue Ridge Mountains, the town of Washington in Rappahannock County is perhaps the best preserved of the Piedmont's county seat communities. Its name honors George Washington, who platted the grid plan in 1749. The community was incorporated in 1796, at which time it received its present name. It became a county seat in 1833 when Rappahannock County was established. Although most of its buildings, both commercial and residential, follow regional vernacular patterns, the district has several architecturally prominent structures. The chief landmark, the 1833 Roman Revival courthouse, was built by Malcolm F. Crawford, who had worked at the University of Virginia. Adjacent is a cluster of mid-19th century county structures including the clerk's office, treasurer's office, and jail. The Washington Historic District's main vernacular structure is the Washington House Tavern, a rambling early 19th century building.

Thirty-one years after the listing of the Washington Historic District in the state and national registers, an amendment to the 1975 nomination was made that extended the period of significance from the 18th and 19th centuries to 1945; the district's boundary, however, was not altered. Most of the historically contributing buildings are located in the core of the town on Main, Gay, Wheeler, Calvert, Middle, and Porter streets and Piedmont and Mount Salem avenues.

(3) May 24, 1979 - Mount Salem Baptist Meeting House

VLR Listing Date 12/19/1978

DHR Reference Number 078-0033

NRHP Listing Date 05/24/1979

NRHP Reference Number 79003076

Although the Mount Salem Baptist congregation in Rappahannock County was organized in 1824, the present meetinghouse was not begun until March 1850. The Mount Salem Baptist Meeting House congregation, which included both whites and African Americans on its first membership list, flourished for many years, remaining active until World War II. The remotely located house of worship survives unaltered from its original state, exhibiting mid-19th-century Virginia's penchant for plainness in country church architecture. The stuccoed exterior is in a simplified Federal style, and the few details of the interior show the influence of Greek Revival pattern books. Its construction was supervised by Henry Miller, a local builder. The meetinghouse closed in 1942 but was restored in 1977. Revived regular services at the Mount Salem Baptist Meeting House ceased in 1989, although the church continues to be maintained by its trustees. The church is located southeast of the town of Washington on Long Mountain Road.

(4) December 28, 1979 - Ben Venue

VLR Listing Date 10/16/1979

DHR Reference Number 078-0003

NRHP Listing Date 12/28/1979

NRHP Reference Number 79003075

Dominating a hilltop with broad views of the Blue Ridge Mountains in Rappahannock County, and anchoring the Ben Venue Rural Historic District, Ben Venue, well known for its row of brick slave houses (shown), is one of the region's more complete antebellum plantation complexes. The two-story brick house was completed in 1846 for William V. Fletcher and is attributed to James Leake Powers, a local builder. Its parapet gables, corbeled shoulders, and chimneys, oddly placed against the front wall, lend the house architectural distinction. The three brick slave houses, lining a ridge in a field to the south, are among several stylistically related outbuildings related to African American history. Like the main house, the slave houses at Ben Venue have parapet gables and corbeled shoulders. Their placement and detailing suggest that they were intended as picturesque features of a scenic view. Slave quarters rarely are found in the Piedmont uplands; no others in the state possess such architectural refinement. The property is located northeast of Washington at the junction of Ben Venue Road and Route 211.

(5) September 2, 1982 - Washington Mill

VLR Listing Date 11/18/1980

DHR Reference Number 078-0089

NRHP Listing Date 09/02/1982

NRHP Reference Number 82004583

A landmark on the eastern edge of the county seat village of Washington, Washington Mill served as the town mill for most of the 19th century. Built ca. 1800 with subsequent additions in 1840 and 1860, the mill is an artifact of the grain and milling economy that was once a dominant aspect of the state's agricultural scene. The gambrel-roofed structure is believed to have also served as a neutral bartering place between Union and Confederate lines during the Civil War. No longer in operation, the mill, like the majority of Virginia's historic mills, has stood vacant and untended for many years. The mill is located east of the town of Washington on Old Mill Road.

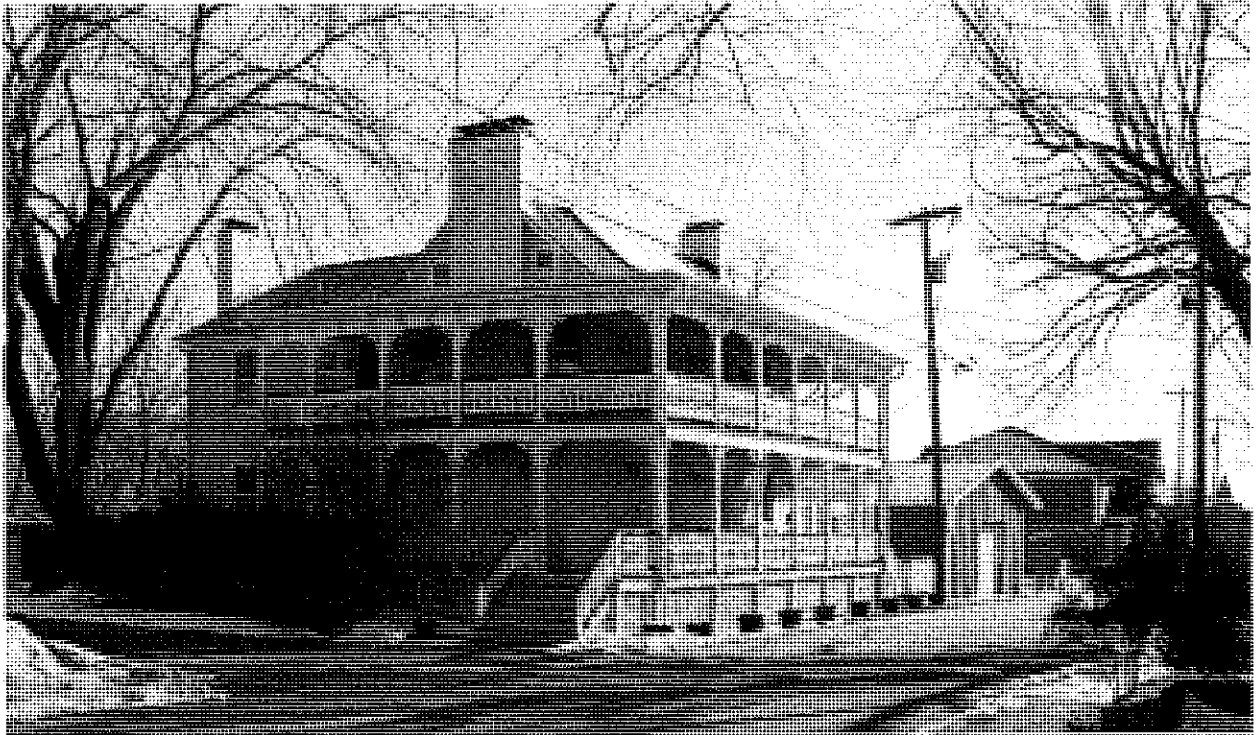

(6) February 10, 1983 - Sperryville Historic District

VLR Listing Date 12/14/1982

DHR Reference Number 078-0093

NRHP Listing Date 02/10/1983

NRHP Reference Number 83003300

This upper Piedmont crossroads town has remained little changed since the 1920s. Laid out in 1820 by Francis Thornton, Jr. on a narrow level area between the Thornton River and the hills of the northern Blue Ridge Mountains, the village grew slowly until 1867 when the Smoot family of Alexandria established a tannery here. The resulting influx of workers led to the construction of many of the unadorned wooden residences still standing in Sperryville. Intermingled are postbellum houses influenced by the 19th-century Romantic Revival and a scattering of late-19th-century workers' houses. In the center of the community is an early brick and frame tavern. Most of the district's buildings line U.S. Route 522 and local Route 1001. An absence of significant modern intrusions has preserved the early village image of this quiet community. The District encompasses Main and Water streets and parts of U.S. Route 522 (Sperryville Pike), and Woodward Road.

(7) December 28, 1990 - Caledonia Farm

VLR Listing Date 06/19/1990

DHR Reference Number 078-0064

NRHP Listing Date 12/28/1990

NRHP Reference Number 90001996

DHR's Virginia Board of Historic Resources easement

The rich scenery of Rappahannock County provides a matchless setting for this early homestead. A farm has existed here since the 18th century. The present house was erected in 1812, following the 1805 purchase of the property by John Dearing, an officer in the Fauquier County militia during the Revolution. The symmetrical Federal-style dwelling has an indigenous quality with its walls constructed of native fieldstone. Dearing and his family maintained a gentry lifestyle here, owning more than twenty slaves and nine horses. Typical of upper-class farmhouses, the house was served by an outdoor kitchen, which, though now connected to the main house by a sheltered passageway, is the only remaining early outbuilding. The house stood derelict for some fifteen years and was restored in 1963-1964. Interior modifications were made but much original woodwork, including Federal mantels, remained. The farm is located at the junction of Fodderstack and Dearing roads.

(8) January 3, 1991 - John W. Miller House

VLR Listing Date 04/17/1990

DHR Reference Number 078-0161

NRHP Listing Date 01/03/1991

NRHP Reference Number 90002010

The John W. Miller House is a prominent landmark in the rolling landscape near Slate Mills in southern Rappahannock County. It was built between 1842 and 1843 using the conventional I-house format. A remodeling in 1880-81 resulted in its lacy Italianate sawnwork porch, central bay window, and bracketed cornice. The façade was extended one bay to the east around 1900. John W. Miller, for whom the house was built, owned and operated the nearby Slate Mills from 1844 to 1871, an industrial complex where he maintained a merchant mill, sawmill, and plaster mill. In addition to the house, the curtilage includes a detached kitchen/servants' quarters, an icehouse, a circa 1925 barn, and the Miller cemetery. The property remained in the Miller family until 1956. After a period of neglect, the John W. Miller House was restored in the late 1980s. The home is located at the junction of Slate Mills and Round Hill roads.

(9) April 28, 1997 - Skyline Drive Historic District

VLR Listing Date 12/04/1996

DHR Reference Number 069-0234

NRHP Listing Date 04/28/1997

NRHP Reference Numbers 97000375;

NHL Listing Date 10/06/2008

97001112; 03001251

Extending through eight counties, including Rappahannock County, the world-famous Skyline Drive is a testament to the expanding movement for conservation, public outdoor recreation, and regional planning that became a hallmark of New Deal federal policy in the 1930s. The concept of a scenic highway along the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountains in the Shenandoah National Park, was first proposed in 1924 and promoted by William Carson, the influential chairman of the Virginia Commission on Conservation and Development. Harvey Benson, National Park Service landscape architect, provided the initial design for the 105-mile highway. Describing the scheme, Benson stated: "Macadamized and smooth, with easy gradient and wide sweeping curves, the drive unfolds to view innumerable panoramas of lofty peaks, forested ravines and the patchwork patterns of valley farms." Using over 4,000 laborers this monumental engineering and landscape project, with numerous associated buildings, was completed in 1939.

The 1997 boundary addition to the Skyline Drive Historic District brings into the existing district approximately 180 acres of land, and approximately 147 resources located in five developed areas of Shenandoah National Park. Most of the areas of the park included in this nomination were designed and constructed as part of National Park Service Master Plans dating from the mid- to late 1930s. They include recreational areas for visitors to the park (picnic grounds, campgrounds, lodges/cabin areas, waysides) and utility, residential, and administrative areas for park personnel. Most buildings contributing to the expanded district were constructed in the mid-1930s to the early 1940s and were designed in the Rustic style [VLR Listed: 7/2/1997; NRHP Listed: 9/19/1997]

In 2003, the boundary was increased to include three distinct areas: Skyland, Lewis Mountain, and Big Meadows. Skyland, originally established as a private resort camp by George Freeman Pollock in the late 1880s, now serves as a recreational, lodging, and service facility for park visitors. It retains built features from each of its periods of development, including a significant collection of rustic architecture reflecting the vernacular building traditions of early Blue Ridge Mountain residents. Lewis Mountain, developed as a segregated recreation and campground facility for African Americans, contains modest rustic cabins and a camp store, which originally served as the facility's lodge. Constructed by the Civilian Conservation Corps (C.C.C.), Lewis Mountain opened in the summer of 1939, but then closed in 1942 due to World War II. The facility and park reopened in 1946 and were fully integrated by the following year. Big Meadows, a historically open meadow, is the largest open space within the boundaries of the park and was the site of an original C.C.C. camp. A treeless area comprising approximately 130 acres, the land has revealed archaeological evidence that early Native Americans may have cleared part of the land to encourage animal grazing. Bisecting Big Meadows is Rapidan Road, which leads to Rapidan Camp (later called Camp Hoover), a small fishing camp and retreat established by President and Mrs. Herbert Hoover in 1931. [VLR Listed: 6/18/2003; NRHP Listed: 12/5/2003]

In 2008, Skyline Drive, with its adjoining overlooks, waysides, picnic areas, campgrounds and development areas, was listed as a National Historic Landmark. Skyline Drive is nationally significant due to the pivotal role it played in the history of the national park system and the evolution of park road design, federal policies in conservation and recreation, and the employment relief measures of the New Deal. It is also nationally significant for its exemplary expression of the principles and practices of National Park Service road design, landscape naturalization, and rustic architectural design and as a showcase of the landscape conservation work of the C.C.C. Designed as the backbone of Shenandoah National Park, Skyline Drive also illustrates the principles of naturalistic landscape design promoted by the National Park Service for work in state and national parks and parkways in the early 20th century.

The portion of the Drive in Rappahannock County extends from approximately Milepost 10 near Carson Mountain to Milepost 36.5 near Jewell Hollow Overlook.

(10) December 1, 1997 - Flint Hill Baptist Church

VLR Listing Date 07/02/1997

DHR Reference Number 078-0066

NRHP Listing Date 12/01/1997

NRHP Reference Number 97001509

Flint Hill Baptist Church is the home of one of the earliest Baptist congregations in Rappahannock County. The church is one of the most prominent antebellum landmarks in the town of Flint Hill and was built in 1854 on land conveyed by Alfred Dearing. The simple frame church evolved into a more fashionable Victorian-era church with the addition of a front tower with an open belfry and interior alterations in the 1890s. Six large stained-glass windows, rare for their size and quality, were also installed in the sanctuary in around 1900. The church is located at 630 Zachary Taylor Highway.

(11) November 27, 2004 - Laurel Mills Historic District

VLR Listing Date 09/08/2004

DHR Reference Number 078-0058

NRHP Listing Date 11/27/2004

NRHP Reference Number 04001273

Encompassing 56-plus acres along the Thornton River in Rappahannock County, the Laurel Mills Historic District is significant for its cohesive collection of mid- to late 19th-century architectural structures associated with the Rappahannock Woolen Mills. The village of Laurel Mills was officially established in 1847, although a sawmill and gristmill operated there beginning in the late 18th century. The compact village thrived in response to the growing mill industry, which took advantage of the Thornton River's waterpower. The Laurel Mills Historic District's period of significance extends from circa 1840, when the first workers' houses were constructed to support a gristmill, through to 1927, when the woolen mill ceased operation. The dominant building forms and styles, often vernacular in interpretation, include Greek Revival, Queen Anne, Italianate, and Gothic Revival. A row of three workers' houses dating to the mid-19th century features several vernacular forms. At the time of its listing, Laurel Mills appeared much as it did when the mill closed. The District is bounded approximately by Laurel Mills Road, the Thornton River, and Laurel Mills farm.

(12) November 11, 2004 – Sunnyside

VLR Listing Date 09/08/2004

DHR Reference Number 078-0049

NRHP Listing Date 11/27/2004

NRHP Reference Number 04001274

Consisting of 421 acres, Sunnyside is nestled against the Blue Ridge Mountains in Rappahannock County. Henry Miller purchased the property in 1780 and deeded it to his son in 1785. Between 1780 and 1996, Sunnyside remained in the Miller family and its descendants. In 1873, Charles Burrell Wood planted the county's first commercial apple orchard at Sunnyside, and since then apples have been raised there commercially. Sunnyside features 18 historic and architecturally important agricultural and domestic structures, ranging from circa 1785 to 1940, including the main log house, which was constructed circa 1785 and enlarged with a stone kitchen wing circa 1800 and a side frame addition around 1850, a former slaves' quarters made of stone, two smokehouses, a root cellar, chicken coop, springhouse, silo, workshop, and a shed; in addition, there are two cemeteries, the stone foundation of a house, and stone walls on the property. Construction of five secondary dwellings (circa 1850, 1870, 1890, 1920, and 1980) at Sunnyside allowed for extended family members and tenant workers to remain on the farm, a common practice of farm stewardship in the 19th and early 20th centuries. Other existing buildings, erected during the mid- to late-20th century, were erected to support advancements made in fruit production. The farm is located at Sunnyside Orchard Lane.

(13) December 14, 2004 - George L. Carder House

VLR Listing Date 03/17/2004

DHR Reference Number 078-5078

NRHP Listing Date 12/14/2004

NRHP Reference Number 04000715

The George L. Carder House is a Federal-style, two-story brick house, built about 1833. Constructed on land owned by George L. Carder, the house was built for a prosperous middling Rappahannock County farming family. The documentary history associated with the Carder House has much to say about the organization of prosperous but unpretentious Virginia households and farms of the antebellum period and after. The Carder family's apparent determination to sustain their livelihood without owning slaves, however, distinguishes them from most of their neighbors and is implied by choices they made when planning and building their house. Two of the notable design components of the house include a two-door façade, which offered independent and selective access to the two principal rooms, and an original kitchen built into the cellar. Significant auxiliary buildings on the George L. Carder House property include a one-room log dwelling, a log shed, and a wood-framed barn. Now known as Boxwood Hill, the Carder House property was, at its largest, a 300-acre farm, and at the time of its listing in the registers, it was just under 4 acres in size. The house is located at 456 Scrabble Road.

(14) September 5, 2006 - Meadow Grove Farm

VLR Listing Date 06/08/2006

DHR Reference Number 078-0059

NRHP Listing Date 09/05/2006

NRHP Reference Number 06000803

Over 364 acres of rolling hills and pastures surround Meadow Grove Farm in Rappahannock County. The highly evolved main house began as a 1-½ -story log building, circa 1820. Two two-story frame additions were added in 1860 and 1881, the first being executed in Greek Revival style. In 1965, the 1881 section was demolished due to instability, then rebuilt, and the original log section was encased in brick. The property was involved in 18th-century land transfers from Lord Fairfax, and has been in the Jones and Massie families since 1797. It is highly significant, as it embodies the evolution of a self-sustaining early 19th-century plantation into an income-producing 20th-century livestock farm. Many of the Meadow Grove Farm property's 19th-century outbuildings remain, including a log slave quarters-tenant house, a schoolhouse, summer kitchen, the former sites of granaries, and the present schoolhouse. A cemetery contains markers for nine members of the Massie family, the earliest dating from 1908 and the latest from 2005. The main house is located at 21 Meadow Grove Lane.

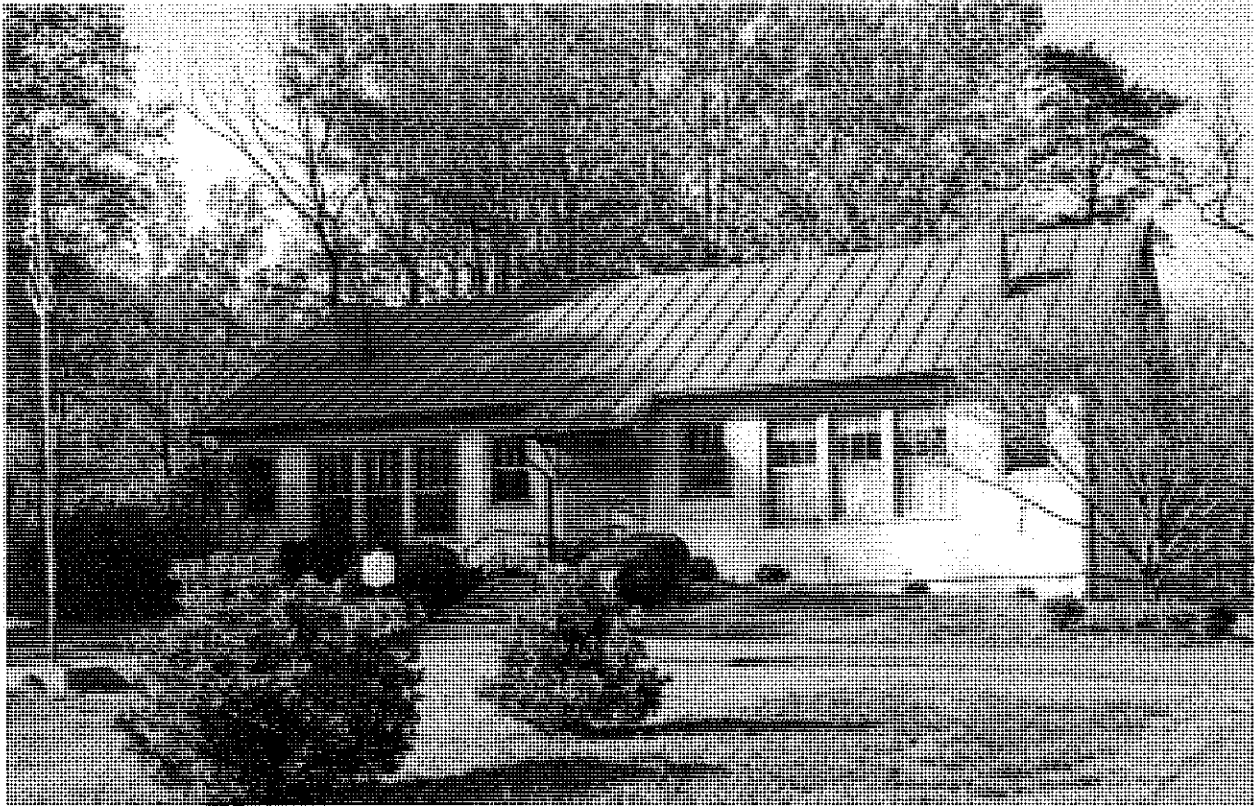

(15) October 31, 2007 - Scrabble School

VLR Listing Date 09/05/2007

DHR Reference Number 078-5107

NRHP Listing Date 10/31/2007

NRHP Reference Number 07001143

Constructed between 1921-22, the Scrabble School was the first school in Rappahannock County to be built under the auspices of the Rosenwald Fund; as such it holds a special place in the history of local education for African Americans. The fund, established by Julius Rosenwald, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., provided financial assistance to rural communities in the South to aid in the construction of schools for African American children so that they could receive an education. The Rosenwald Fund required a locality to cover some construction costs but also provided building plans for the school, thus making sure it conformed to Rosenwald standards. Scrabble School features a bank of windows to capture natural lighting and a layout design typical of other Rosenwald schools. It was established through the efforts of Isaiah Wallace, a local African American resident who dedicated himself to ensuring that black children received an education. Though Wallace had attended school only minimally and under poor conditions, he was guided early by a love of learning and a desire to secure education for others. Scrabble School was segregated until 1967, its final year of operation. The rehabilitated Scrabble School now serves as a community center. The building is located at 111 Scrabble Road.

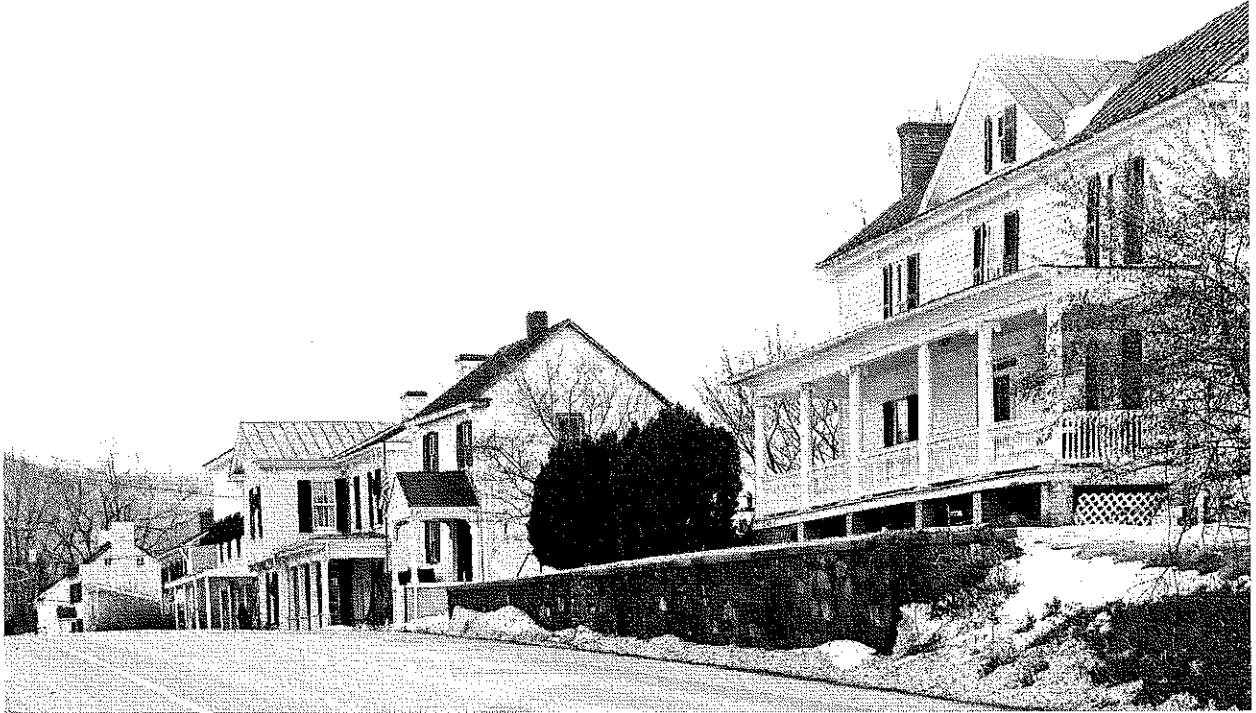

(16) January 27, 2012, Flint Hill Historic District

VLR Listing Date 06/17/2010

DHR Reference Number 078-5018

NRHP Listing Date 01/27/2012

NRHP Reference Number 11001070

The Flint Hill Historic District is located in northern Rappahannock County. The district arose as a crossroads community beginning in the 1740s and was established in 1843 by an act of the General Assembly. During the next century, the community grew into a thriving regional village. The compact, linear-shaped historic district includes residential dwellings, retail and agricultural buildings such as apple-packing sheds, and schools and churches, all representing the village's development and exhibiting a variety of popular architectural styles such as Federal, Greek Revival, Gothic Revival, Italianate and Craftsman. The District encompasses parts of Zachary Taylor Highway near Fodderstack, Crest Hill, and Ben Venue roads.

(17) Locust Grove/R.E. Luttrell Farmstead

VLR Listing Date 03/21/2013

DHR Reference Number 078-5095

NRHP Listing Date 05/28/2013

NRHP Reference Number 13000343

The Locust Grove/R.E. Luttrell Farmstead in Rappahannock County dates to about 1815, when the main house was constructed. The farmstead evolved until about 1940, when major construction and alterations ceased on most of the 19-acre site's agricultural buildings. Representative of a Virginia Piedmont farmstead, Locust Grove was initially devoted to subsistence farming before it became a horse farm in the 1920s. The main dwelling was constructed as a two-story, five-bay, frame I-house, with massive exterior-end stone and brick chimneys. It was expanded in the mid-19th and early-20th centuries. The interior retains period materials including door and window trim, chair rails, floors, doors and hardware, and has some very unusual mantels, unseen elsewhere in the region. The house is located at 24 Bunree Lane.

(18) February 2, 2016 - Ben Venue Rural Historic District

VLR Listing Date 12/10/2015

DHR Reference Number 078-5141

NRHP Listing Date 02/02/2016

NRHP Reference Number 15001042

Running along Ben Venue Road (Route 729) between the late-18th century villages of Gaines Crossroads and Flint Hill, the Ben Venue Rural Historic District in Rappahannock County features farmsteads and residences of historic buildings and supporting structures dating from the mid-18th century through the mid-20th century, including Ben Venue. The district encompasses a rolling landscape of open pastures, forests, and views of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Ben Venue Road, originally known as Richmond Road, was incorporated into an early regional turnpike for conveying goods from the mountains to markets in Richmond and beyond. The curving, narrow, paved road transects the district and is lined by historic stone walls and wood fences. The Ben Venue Rural Historic District reflects a broad and evolving range of cultural patterns including early settlement, crossroads communities, transportation corridors, and a multitude of supporting small farms and orchard lands. The District encompasses Ben Venue Road and Williams Farm, Fogg Mountain, Hickerson Mountain, and Points of View lanes.

Washington School in Rappahannock County was constructed around 1923 as a Public Colored Free School building serving eight grades. The school's construction cost $3,500, with the African American community contributing $1,200, $1,600 from public contributions, and $700 from the Rosenwald Fund. The one-story frame school was constructed as a two-classroom building with a concrete foundation, weatherboard siding, metal roof, and two porches attached to the separate classroom vestibules. A central brick chimney accommodated two coal-burning stoves, one for each classroom. The front of the school housed the Industrial Room, a common feature of Rosenwald schools. In the late 1950s an addition at the rear of the building housed a boy's bathroom and a girl's bathroom, replacing two outside privies. Two water fountains were also added. There was a hand-dug stone and concrete well. Later in its history, a kitchen was added so that students could have a hot lunch. Because of the large area that it served, there were sometimes as many as 100 students in the two-room school. There were only a few teachers, although at times the older students helped instruct the younger children. The Washington School closed in 1963 and was converted into two apartments but retains the early look and feel of its rural setting and exhibits historic integrity of design, workmanship, and materials. The building is located at 267 Piedmont Avenue.
