- (b) Whenever a structure used for a lawful nonconforming land use activity has been damaged by natural disaster, the structure may be reconstructed, and the prior nonconforming use may continue without a new permit otherwise required. In such cases, the continuing use after reconstruction shall be limited to only those prior lawful land use activities that are otherwise permitted under this Chapter.

- (c) Ordinary maintenance and repairs made to a nonconforming building or structure will be allowed without a permit required provided that the repair and maintenance conforms with the requirements of the district in which the structure is located and all other provisions of this chapter.
- (d) Construction of an addition made to expand or add to a nonconforming building or structure in the front, side and rear yards is allowed without a permit required subject to the following limitations:

  - 2. The addition shall not further encroach into the established nonconforming front or rear yard setbacks of the existing nonconforming structure; and
  - 3. The addition shall conform with all other requirements of the district in which it is located and all other provisions of this Chapter.

37.11.2 Non-Conforming Accessory Structures. Construction of an addition made to expand or add to a non-conforming accessory structure is allowed without a permit otherwise required provided that:

- (a) The addition to an existing accessory structure shall not encroach in the setbacks required in the zoning district in which the structure is located.
- (b) The additional structure shall not exceed fifty (50) percent of the original size of the accessory structure.

applicable to the district in which the parcel or structure is located unless a variance is approved and issued under this Chapter.

- (b) Damage. If a nonconforming structure or parcel of land is damaged to the extent of more than fifty percent of its fair market value or declared uninhabitable by the Zoning Administrator or other tribal official authorized under the Code to condemn structures, the damaged structure or land shall not be restored except in conformity with the regulations of the district in which it is located or a variance is approved and issued by the Tribal Council pursuant to Section 12. The total set of structural repairs or alterations to a nonconforming structure shall not, over the life of the structure, exceed fifty (50) percent of the current fair market value of the structure unless the landowner's changes to the structure and use of the property conform to the requirements and conditions of the current zoning district in which the property is located.

37.12            SECTION 12- VARIANCES.

37.12.1            General Provisions. A variance to the dimensional requirements applicable within a given zoning district may be issued to a landholder after submitting a complete Land Use Application for a variance, review and recommendation by the Zoning Administrator, review and recommendation by the PAC Review Board, and approval by the Tribal Council. An Applicant who wishes to build or change a structure or develop a property in a way that is inconsistent with the numerical restrictions or dimensional standards of the zoning district, such as setbacks and maximum heights, may apply for a variance in a Land Use Application in accordance with this section.

37.12.2            Proof of Need. To qualify for consideration for a variance, the subject property must meet all the following requirements:

- (a) Unnecessary Hardship. Without issuance of the requested variance, no reasonable beneficial use can be made of the property. Unavoidable and needless hardship must be caused by application of this Chapter to the subject property. If a parcel as a whole (but not necessarily each portion of the parcel) provides the landholder with some reasonable use according to the zoning district without an approved variance, then this hardship requirement condition is not met. An applicant may not claim hardship because of conditions which are self-imposed or created by a prior land holder. Decks and other accessory structures are not essential to the reasonable use of property and are not eligible for variances.

(b) Hardship Due to Unique Physical Limitations of the Property. A qualified hardship must be due to the unique physical limitations of the property, i.e. compliance with the applicable requirements is prevented by substantial topographical, environmental, geographical, or other physical limitations (e.g., steep slopes, wetlands) that are not generally shared by most properties within the Reservation. Personal circumstances of an applicant (e.g., growing family, need for larger garage) are not qualifying factors for variances. Nearby Code violations, prior formal or informal variances, or the absence of objections from the public shall not constitute qualifying factors or serve as a basis for a variance.

(c) No Harm to Tribal Interests. A variance may not be granted if the results would cause harm to a substantial tribal interest. These tribal interests are listed in the Purpose clause of this Chapter (Section 37.2) and may encompass general cultural and environmental protection interests.

37.12.3 Procedure. A Land Use Application for a variance submitted by a landholder must include adequate detail to allow the Zoning Administrator to perform a review sufficient to make required findings for a recommendation to the PAC Review Board. If the Zoning Administrator the application is complete and contains enough detail to allow for adequate review, the Zoning Administrator shall review and provide a recommendation to the PAC Review Board. The PAC Review Board shall review the application at a regular meeting and shall by majority vote make its findings supporting its recommendation to the Tribal Council whether to approve or deny the application for a variance. The PAC Review Board shall refer the application and recommendations to the Tribal Council for final determination. The Tribal Council's written decision to approve or deny the variance application shall be delivered to applicant stating the specific details of the variance as approved by the Tribal Council.

Permit fees shall be doubled if ground disturbance, construction work, or unauthorized use or activity is commenced prior to a required permit being issued.

37.15.3 Forfeitures. Any person found guilty by the Tribal Court of violating any provision of this Chapter shall forfeit not more than five-thousand dollars ($5,000.00) per violation.
