Item #1	PRESENTATION ON THE JUST DEEDS PROJECT, WHICH WORKS TO FACILITATE THE REMOVAL OF RACIALLY-RESTRICTIVE COVENANTS FROM PROPERTY DEEDS, AND HOW RICHFIELD CAN BECOME A PARTICIPATING COMMUNITY.
----------------	---

Assistant Community Development Director Poehlman provided a brief introduction on racial covenants and introduced Jared Shepherd, Hoff Barry Attorneys and Jamar Hardy, Edina Realty.

Jared Shepherd and Jamar Hardy introduced themselves, provided background information and explained why they got involved with the Just Deeds project and the history of the Just Deeds project. Jared and Jamar presented the project goals, an overview of racist and exclusionary housing policies, explained the history of racial covenants, shared locations within the City of Richfield where racial covenants exist, and how the city can partner with the Just Deeds project to discharge covenants on city owned property and assist residents in rejecting racially restrictive covenants on their property.

HRA Chair Supple explained the next steps that could be taken by staff and policy makers to move forward with this work.

Planning Commissioner Stursa spoke of efforts being made by the Human Rights Commission around mapping prejudice and shared her support of the Just Deeds project.

HRA Commissioner Vrieze Daniels offered her support of the Just Deeds project.

HRC Commissioner Glubka also shared her support for the project.

HRA Commissioner Sandahl spoke of her experience with title law and restrictive covenants and inquired about rejecting racial covenants on Torren’s property.

Jared Shepherd shared information for rejecting covenants on Torren’s properties.

Planning Commissioner Lavin inquired about the city enacting an ordinance that would require the covenants to be stricken from the title.

Jared Shepherd shared his thoughts about engaging with individual residents and confronting the history versus erasing it.

Jamar Hardy shared his insight as a realtor and bringing the experience to individual homeowners to make the decisions themselves.

Assistant Community Development Director Poehlman explained intents to provide information through the point of sale inspection process to direct homeowners to find information on their property.

Planning Chair Quam inquired about the opposition of this proposal.

Jared Shepherd shared goals to inform residents of property history and that he does not know of any opposition. The goal is not to erase history, rather to acknowledge history and to engage the community in discussion.

Assistant Community Development Director Poehlman explained how this is an example of systemic racism and the Just Deeds project is good conversation to figure out how certain policies effect people differently.

Council Member Hayford O'Leary offered his support for the Just Deeds project and mentioned how this is an important first step.

Housing Manager Urban explained how to find a restrictive covenant map through the Mapping Prejudice website.

Assistant Community Development Director Poehlman shared her feelings about racial covenants being discovered on city property.

Jamar Hardy explained that title companies and realtors don't discuss racial covenants on property with people when purchasing their home and most people are unaware they exist.

Jared Shepherd explained how the history of a property can be stacked or buried in the history of a plat. He emphasized the importance of engaging with community members to allow individuals to make the decision to reject the covenants.

HRA Commissioner Ohnesorge inquired about the process for property owners to reject the covenants on their property.

Jared Shepherd explained the process for homeowners to reject the covenants through the Just Deeds project.

HRA Chair Supple shared her support of the Just Deeds project and the city moving forward with this work.
